Brother Deltasigs:

THE COLLEGE YEAR just drawing to a close has, I feel, been one of the most successful and satisfactory in the history of Delta Sigma Pi, thanks to the cooperation of many national, provincial, and local officers, and the loyal support of a growing undergraduate and alumni membership. I want to take this opportunity to submit a brief review of our activities of the year.

For the most part our chapters have been able to successfully cope with their membership problem, in spite of the prevailing business depression. A very, very few have keenly felt a dearth of prospective members, but other chapters, faced with similar conditions, have simply tightened their belt three or four notches and doubled their efforts along these lines, successfully.

In scholarship, professional activity, campus affairs, social life and intramural athletics, our chapters have made much progress. Obviously, there will probably always be room for improvement in all these different phases of college life, but most chapters are responding very satisfactorily to our suggestions along these lines.

I feel that we have been outstanding in two things this year: chapter visitation by Grand Officers, and in the improvement of our publications. All but 7 of our 54 chapters have been visited by Grand Secretary-Treasurer Wright or myself, and the 7 we haven't been able to include in our itinerary will be visited the first thing next fall. In addition, a number of chapters have been visited by other members of the board of directors. In publications, THE DELTASIG has been materially enlarged and improved, and we have also published a new manual for chapter officers, a style sheet for correspondents of THE DELTASIG, a new constitution and by-laws, model chapter by-laws, and much preliminary work has been done in connection with our Official Bulletin which will make its first appearance soon, and a new pledge manual which will appear during the summer months.

Four chapters have been installed during the year. Several new alumni clubs are being organized. Our National Endowment Fund is growing.

We will continue our activities during the coming year, but with greater emphasis on the development of our provincial organization, the internal development of the fraternity, and the further elaboration of our publications. We look forward to another good year.

I feel that definite progress has been made toward the goal outlined in my last message, and I hereby acknowledge the activities of the many loyal brothers who have helped in making this year successful.

Fraternally yours,

E. L. SCHUJAHN, Grand President.

★ College Becomes an Institution of Higher Earnings . . . . . You Will Enjoy This ★ Interesting Article by Brother Nations.

I AM AN obscure professor in a Southern university. The catalogue includes my name as a member of the faculty of the School of Commerce and Business Administration.

The university will soon commemorate its one hundredth anniversary; but the school of commerce and business administration, only ten years old, is already the largest of the university's professional schools in point of student enrollment. Of the 3,500 students now at the university, over 650 are pursuing work toward the degree of Bachelor of Science in Commerce. Fourteen years ago the enrollment in the entire university was fewer than six hundred. Today, in fine, this ten-year-old school of commerce and business administration has a larger registration than the entire university had in the eighty-third year of its existence. In 1928, the school of commerce dedicated the biggest classroom building on the campus.

I believe that the history of the university where I am now teaching is fairly representative of the rise of the professional school of business administration in America. Let us glance, however, at the situation in general.

I have before me an exhaustive survey of the growth in commerce education. It is the work of H. G. Wright, Grand Secretary-Treasurer of Delta Sigma Pi, a professional commerce and business administration fraternity. I quote his concluding words:

With a total registration of 73,944 students in commerce in eighty-nine of our universities, with many universities building or planning to erect large and elaborate buildings for these schools of commerce and business administration to occupy, it is beyond contradiction to state that our schools of commerce have assumed an important position in our educational structure and will continue in such position with ever-increasing importance . . . I believe that from the viewpoint of registered students, schools of commerce rank second only to the liberal arts colleges throughout the country, surpassing every other professional school. . . .

Alpha Sigma Chapter
University of Alabama

Let me present another bit of statistical information which indicates roughly the popular trend in education. Mr. J. O. Malott, specialist in commercial education for the United States Bureau of Education, says:

The highest percentage of increase in enrollments in commercial curricula from 1915 to 1924 is in the colleges and universities; during this period these enrollments increased from 9,323 to 47,552—an increase of 410 per cent.

Dean Raymond Walters of Swarthmore College, upon reports received from 216 colleges and universities throughout the United States which are on the approved list of the Association of American Universities, says that the five year increase in college education as a whole, 1922-27, totals twenty-five per cent.

Obviously, the college of commerce is making inroads into our other colleges. It is particularly competing with the college of liberal arts. The latter, although its actual enrollment has increased, in fact has lost ground proportionately until it stands today as a preparatory college for our professional schools or as a cultural haven for those few among us who can still afford the luxury of a liberal education which conduces to an appreciation of the good, the beautiful and the true.

I sometimes wonder what strange combination of circumstances contributed to my becoming a member of a faculty in a college of commerce and business administration. As an undergraduate I was not especially interested in business subjects; I was graduated, in fact, from a college of liberal arts. Teaching as a profession was farthest from my thoughts.

As I look back at it now from the vantage point of a half-dozen years, it seems to me that the college of liberal arts emphasized the idea that education was a training for life; that business obtained for the glorification of life, and not that life obtained for the glorification of business. Man before business. And I would have enjoyed life, too, I dare say, if my liberal education had somewhere trained me to live with some degree of economic security, to provide myself with some few of the luxuries which I had come to look upon as mere necessities. I found, however, that the very liberal education which should have prepared me for life redounded to my inability to adjust myself to the humdrum realities of commerce. Even to this day—and the confession comes hard—I am fonder of lyric poetry than of advertising copy which extols the virtues of soup, cigarettes, balloon tires, and Elbert Hubbard's Scrap Book.

But the writing of lyric poetry by a mediocre graduate of a college of liberal arts does not yield a livelihood. I know, because I tried it for a while in a garret on Morningside Heights, only to find my poetry promptly and justly rejected by the very best editors in America. And while I wrote sonnets to Persephone, my father sank a fortune in the oil fields of Oklahoma in a desperate effort to become a millionaire, and my favorite sweetheart of the moment married a young man whose name suggests that he might belong to a race which has long been famous for its acquisitive instincts. Had I been made of sterner stuff, I might not have betrayed my ambitions. Had I been blessed with the talents of an Upton Sinclair, or a Sinclair Lewis, I might have acquired a competence by writing novels in which I berated our contemporary civilization for letting goodness, beauty and truth perish in a garret. Perhaps I had too much respect for the truth. I turned to the one thing which my Master of Arts degree had equipped me for: an obscure professorial post in a State university.

Just as the militant lecturer of the W. C. T. U. in the old white ribbon days was wont to refer to the town drunkard whom she had enticed to sit upon the platform for two dollars, as "this sad example of drink," so I have come to look upon myself as an unhappy specimen of one who drank too freely from the chalice of liberal education in an industrial age.

I observe, however, that the undergraduates of the school in which I am now teaching are equipped with sturdier virtues which should enable them to disdain the grog-shops of the arts and sciences. I observe, for instance, that although we have the major of Commercial Teaching listed in our catalogue, we have no one student among our six hundred enrolled in it. Why, in the age of mass production and frenzied marketing, should any student of sound mind and robust conscience enroll in the liberal arts when the rewards of sales managing are much greater than those of school mastering? Why should he — when the Republican party elects in the name of business prosperity a man who has served as our Secretary of the Department of Commerce; and when the Democratic party selects in the name of business a candidate who studiously surrounds himself with advisers whose names are synonymous with industrial achievement? Thus, from the nation's capital to a college campus, the passion for business prosperity surges unchecked in our daily lives.

In the Greece of Pericles, the greatest civilization that has ever flourished upon the earth, a sharply defined social class snubbed its money gleaners as "barbarians." In the England of yesterday and today, a landed gentry has steadfastly refused to defer to the financial baron. But in America we witness the spectacle of a nation's gentlemen subscribing to an industrial ideal of business prosperity.

A century ago, I am told, there lived in England a sturdy old member of the landed aristocracy who was the father of five sons. The oldest of the sons, of course, inherited the patrimony and became a country gentleman. The second of the sons went into the ministry, a third into the law, a fourth into the army — all respectable professions for the sons of an English baron of a century ago and of this day. The fifth son, however, went into a counting house, and the face of this young scion who thus disgraced his baronial honor was turned to the wall in the gallery of family portraits with this inscription beneath his name: "Gone into the trade."

If the English baron were living in America today, he would probably turn the portraits of all of his sons to the wall save the one who went into the trade. In America, the sons of our worthiest citizens unblushingly enroll in our commerce schools; and the president of our most scholarly university welcomes them in the name of "Business, the oldest of the arts, and the newest of the professions."

The American university, of course, can not withdraw from the life of the community as did the monastery of medieval days. The popular standard of progress in America substitutes the value of quantity for that of quality; the excellence of a university is largely judged by the number of its students. In order to attract a large number of students, a university must give the community what it wants; and, if the community wants training for business, the university obliges with a college of commerce.

The American university, in truth, is as much in league with business prosperity as any of our institutions. Only in times of business prosperity can the community send a large number of its sons and daughters to the university. The greater the number of students who come to the university, the greater the university's need for funds to accommodate them. In prosperous times, the legislature is liberal with its educational appropriation; in prosperous times, the alumni are generous with their subscriptions to their Alma Mater. America leads the family of nations in mass production; and not by accident does America lead the world in mass education.

Economic conditions in the United States have radically changed since Horatio Alger wrote of the self-made boys of the Nineteenth Century who struggled from rags to riches, from poverty to power, from obscurity to fame. It was the boast of the untutored American of a generation or two ago that he was the best business man upon God's green earth! And he probably was. Too often, however, he overlooked the fact that God's green earth was indeed green. One hundred and sixty acres of land awaited Horatio Alger's hero of the Nineteenth Century as his inalienable birthright. The mineral resources, the virgin forests, the power sites, were his for the asking, too. The country was growing rapidly; labor was inexpensive; commerce and industry were expanding apace. It was comparatively easy to blunder through to success; indeed, it was difficult to fail. Surely one did not have to train assiduously for economic success.

Business life in America during the Twentieth Century can hardly be expected to award those who direct their efforts poorly; for business life in America will continue to be characterized by a decrease in natural resources, and, in the course of things, by an increase in scientific research to find substitutes for our dwindling raw materials. Again, the expansion of American industry upon a large scale has witnessed, paradoxically, a tendency toward intensive specialization, and one today who aspires to economic success must be an expert in his particular line.

It is not surprising that a young man prefers to begin his business experience, if need be, by sweeping out the commerce classroom instead of the business office, for he believes that he can better acquire his professional knowledge by studying the broad principles of business in a college classroom than by serving an apprenticeship in a shop where the owner may or may not be aware of the complex conditions which are contributing to the success or to the failure of his enterprise. The college of commerce and business administration, moreover, offers him an opportunity to train for his major activity of life. In the college where I am now teaching, for example, the student may major in one of the following specialized fields: accounting, advertising, banking and finance, business and law, commercial teaching, foreign service, general business, merchandising, production and personnel, real estate and insurance, transportation and public utilities.

Mr. Coolidge has been quoted as saying that as many opportunities exist today in America as ever before. If they do occur, they will undoubtedly be grasped, not by the I-Will-Arise youngster of the past, but by the young man who is now being trained in the broad principles of business, in the methods of scientific research and production, and in the administration of large scale enterprises and vast numbers of employees.

And because of this training, I believe that the business collegian will, upon graduation, be more closely identified with corporate ownership in business. His study of the principles of business enables him to see the field as a whole; his specialized training necessitates his securing employment with big business; his economic knowledge convinces him that the great corporation has inherent advantages for commercial success which the one-man or family or private business does not possess.

The great corporation, too, takes kindly to the collegian who trains for business. Each spring, representatives of big corporations visit the colleges of the land and skim the cream of the graduating crop. The commerce graduate, therefore, will increasingly throw his weight into the scales which are influencing the disappearance of individual ownership in America.

The popular imagination in the muck-raking stage of our development pictured the corporation as an octopus which fastened its devilish arms about the innocent life of the nation. Latterly, however, the concept has been considerably altered, thanks to the vision of a rising school of business men who see business as a service to the nation. No longer does the ideal of profits appeal as the final aim to some of our industrial leaders. They feel that they can enjoy business prosperity only if they perform a service to their fellowmen in ministering to human needs.

But what part are our colleges of commerce and business administration playing in spreading this vision of service to mankind?

In the past, we have almost exclusively emphasized our specialized courses which equip students to fill bread-and-butter positions upon graduation. The old-fashioned private business colleges did that, too, and perhaps much more successfully than our colleges of commerce and business administration are now doing.

We who are engaged in training collegians for business keep repeating that phrase of President Lowell's: "Business is the oldest of the arts, and the newest of the professions." A profession to be worthy of the name should subscribe to a code of ethics. Where is ours?

As far as I have been able to determine, there are two hundred and seven separate codes of business ethics extant in the work-a-day world. It is indeed singular that no one of them has been adopted by our colleges of commerce and business administration. Even if they should attempt to single out a code, or to create one which includes the core-thought of the many, a pretty problem would present itself before one was unanimously adopted. Perhaps, the fifteen Principles of Business Conduct as adopted by the United States Chamber of Commerce in its annual session in 1924 should simplify the matter. But why, paraphrasing Clemenceau, should the United States Chamber of Commerce enumerate fifteen principles for the conduct of business, when God in his infinite wisdom gave only ten for the conduct of mankind! Verily, man is simple, and business is complex.

In America, the sons of our worthiest citizens unblushingly enroll in our commerce schools; and the president of our most scholarly university welcomes them in the name of "Business, the oldest of the arts, and the newest of the professions."

The need of such a code, nevertheless, has existed ever since Joseph Wharton, who endowed the first school of business in the United States, the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce at the University of Pennsylvania in 1881, denounced "the immorality and practical inexpediency of seeking to acquire wealth by winning it from another rather than by earning it through some sort of service to one's fellows." The need of subscribing to a code of business ethics is even greater today than in 1881, for the sense of responsibility which once rested with millions of small business men is now entrusted to those few who direct and manage our large corporations in which shares are held by countless stockholders.

In the school of commerce and business administration where I am now teaching, this statement occurs in the printed matter which defines the purpose of the school: "It is essential that the young men and women of the State should be trained in the best light of business science. It is even more essential that they should be trained in the understanding of Frank A. Vanderlip's happy phrase, 'a proper sense of trusteeship.'" I know that this statement exists, because I wrote it. And I dare say that every college of commerce and business administration in America presents a somewhat similar statement, and ignores it in the press of specialized courses.

The young men and women of the state who enroll in the school with which I am associated pursue a four-year curriculum of 128 semester hours which includes many courses. We have no one course which is given over to a proper sense of trusteeship. It is true that we do not teach an improper sense of trusteeship; we simply do not give, unless it be in cursory fashion in our specialized courses, any attention to it at all. And although many of our graduates are eager young fellows of ambition, intelligence and honor, I am afraid that a few of them have gone out into the world in some such manner as the hungry lions advanced upon the helpless Christians in a Roman amphitheatre.

Again, it seems to me, that from the September the student is matriculated in a college of commerce until the June that he is graduated, he should be impressed with the influence of the business man upon our social and economic life, for that influence reaches the deepest foundations of our firmest institutions: the church, the State, the school, the press, the theatre.

How can the collegian who trains for business become a cultured citizen if the seeds of a full-souled life are not nurtured during his college days? He may turn through a sense of responsibility to cultural pursuits in later years when he has acquired a competency; but never through a sense of spontaneity unless the seeds of culture are somehow kept alive and flourishing. Culture can not be grafted upon a business man, or upon a business community, as a limb can be grafted upon a tree. One doubts the citizen of Chicago who said: "Chicago has no culture, because she hasn't gone in for culture—but when she does, she'll show you a bigger and better culture than in any other city in the world!"

Although our colleges of commerce and business administration are not altogether concerned with business subjects, the tendency is to desert the classical ideal in favor of the ideal of business prosperity. Some few of our business schools, seventeen to be exact, are of the two-year type; that is, they require the candidate for graduation to spend his freshman and sophomore years in the college of liberal arts. Still fewer of our business schools, five to be exact, are of the three-year type. The majority of our commerce colleges, sixty-one to be again exact, are of the four-year type; that is, the student enters the college of commerce as a freshman and carries his work through to graduation as a commerce student. Only five of our business schools are of the five-year or graduate type.

Many of our business schools, including a number of the four-year type, are not exclusively devoted to the presentation of business subjects, for the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business demands that forty per cent of the curriculum of a member school be devoted to cultural subjects. Unfortunately many of these "cultural" subjects—Business English, Commercial Spanish, Psychology of Business, Commercial Geography, Mathematics of Finance, Commercial Art—have a direct business flavor. The commerce student, in fact, is reluctant to enroll in a college course which is not directly or indirectly related to his passion for business profits. He has done with these courses as soon as possible, in order that he may specialize in his particular business sphere.

It seems to me that the time has come for the college of commerce and business administration to admit that it is throwing a sorry sop to the classical ideal in presenting a hodge-podge of semi-cultural subjects. If one real cultural subject, honestly presented as such, were required of each commerce student as an avocation, the benefits which would accrue to the student and to the community would be infinitely greater than those which result under the existing system.

Now, no one has a quarrel with a young man who is eager to acquire a degree of economic security in order that he may practice the delicate art of living life. No one, moreover, has a quarrel with a young nation that is ambitious to attain a level of economic excellence in order that cultural opportunities may obtain for the masses of its people. But one does have a quarrel with the apologists for our present lack of culture who smugly contend that when America comes of economic age, American men will eagerly turn their energies to cultural fields. What influences will then direct them there? Will a Moses arise among the push carts to lead the masses into the promised land? Will the Aristotelian idea that in every human breast there is implanted a divine urge for perfection suffice to turn the balance?

As things are, it seems that if any definite class is to emerge in America that will keep alive the cultural flame—that will not be concerned with business as the major activity of life—this class will be composed not of men, but of women, the present co-eds. The young man of the nation, by

The University of Chicago Chapel, an outstanding example of Gothic architecture.

ALTHOUGH THE reorganization of the University of Chicago affects administration and research as well as education, I shall confine my remarks to the educational aspects of the plan. Few of you, I imagine, are university administrators and still fewer research workers. Most of you, however, have either been graduated or expelled from college, or if you have not had either of these delightful experiences, you have children for whom they are in store. Perhaps some of you are high school students, and consequently cherish a natural desire to know whether under the present organization of the University of Chicago you would be more likely to be graduated or to be expelled.

In order to shed light on this and other important questions it is perhaps best for me to begin by stating exactly what the reorganization is and how far it has gone. But even before doing that I should like to point out that though the plan now in effect is experimental in the sense that it is new in conception and application, it is not experimental in the sense that it is reckless or ill-considered. Many parts of the program have been under consideration at the University of Chicago and elsewhere for several years. Still other parts of the program have actually been tried, and successfully tried, here and at other universities. We have attempted to combine in one large-scale venture the best thinking that has been done in other institutions and within our own quadrangles in regard to educational problems. Enough trial and error has gone on at Chicago and elsewhere for us to be reasonably confident that our present plan will produce better educational results than any we have been capable of in the past. We shall modify the plan from time to time in the light of experience, but we do not expect to be compelled to depart from any essential principle involved in it; for

★ By ★
Robert Maynard Hutchins
President, University of Chicago

we think those principles have been shown to be entirely sound.

Constructive Changes

The reorganization of the University abolishes the Graduate Schools, the Senior College and the Junior College. The institution now consists of the professional schools and of five divisions in Arts: the Humanities, the Social Sciences, the Physical Sciences, the Biological Sciences, and the College. The College is an entirely new kind of educational unit. It is constructed to attempt to discover what a general education ought to be and to administer it thereafter. No degrees are to be awarded in the College. The student who wishes only a general education may leave the University with a certificate showing that he has one, after he has passed the general examinations testing general education. If in addition he can show that he is qualified for advanced study he will be admitted to one of the four upper divisions, or eventually, perhaps, to one of the professional schools. All degrees will be awarded by these divisions and schools. In order to secure breadth of training, students will be recommended for degrees by an entire division and not by one department.

The educational object of the reorganization therefore, was to provide in the College, first, a sound general education; second, preparation for advanced study in one of the divisions or in a professional school; to provide in the divisions opportunities to the students to specialize in one of the major fields of knowledge and at the same time to secure breadth of training. The faculties of all the divisions are now re-canvassing their course of study and the regulations governing it. Since the staff had three years ago given much attention to these matters in the College and since the College is basic to the whole enterprise, it is not remarkable that the first definite action was taken by that division. It has voted that effective with the entering class next fall, credits and time requirements are abolished as the criterion of intellectual maturity, and that comprehensive examinations shall be developed to reflect the completion of general education and qualification for advanced study. The other divisions, which are now reconsidering their course of study, are free to experiment with it, and that freedom implies that if they so decide they may leave things as they are.

Cutting Across Old Boundaries

One important step, however, has just been taken which may have great effect on the course of study in the upper divisions. The Faculty has decided that plans should be made for the award of degrees in fields cutting across not only departmental lines, but also divisional lines. This involves specific approval of a plan presented by the Division of the Social Sciences for conferring the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy in International Relations. Under this scheme students desiring advanced work in this field as preparation for research, teaching, diplomacy, or foreign trade will be able for the first time to avail themselves of all the opportunities offered at the University for the study of international affairs.

When the College Faculty had determined to abolish class attendance, course examinations, and course credits, and to develop comprehensive examinations to be taken by the student when in his opinion he was ready for them, it at once became clear that the problem of student advice and the problem of establishing, administering, and testing comprehensive examinations were very serious and very important. On December 17, therefore, it was decided to appoint a new officer to be known as Dean of Students and University Examiner, who should be responsible for the organization of the best possible advisory service for students, and responsible as well for the installation of the best possible system of general examination. This officer will see to it that every student has all the advice that he can stand, that he is thoroughly familiar with what the University expects of him, and with the courses offered in the University as a means of achieving it.

The New College

This, then, is the reorganization of the University of Chicago to date. Whereas the institution was formerly composed of the professional schools and forty departments, we now have the professional schools and five Divisions: the Humanities, the Social Sciences, the Physical Sciences, the Biological Sciences, and the College. In the College the traditional methods of measurement, which have always been stated in terms of courses taken and years spent, have been abandoned. Beginning with the entering class next fall the student will be expected to prepare himself in the College for a general examination which he will normally take at the end of two years, and which will test both his general education and his ability to do advanced work. Passing such an examination will not entitle the student to any degree, for all degrees will be awarded in the upper divisions, and only on the basis of a general education plus advanced study. Passing the examination testing the completion of general education will secure for the student a certificate indicating that he has honorably finished the work of the College. If he passes in addition the examination qualifying him for work in one of the four upper Divisions, or perhaps in one of the professional schools, he may go on with advanced professional or non-professional study. In the upper divisions he must show qualifications to be determined upon by the Division as a whole and not by one department. Throughout his course he will have an adviser whose business it will be to understand his problems and to indicate to him how he may best prepare for the examinations. The construction of these examinations is such a serious matter that a new officer has been appointed at the head of the examining system.

Students are Individuals

But you may ask why it was that the University of Chicago felt compelled to make such sweeping changes in its educational methods. The answer is that when we looked at the education that the University was administering we saw that the system we had gradually developed was not quite accomplishing our educational objectives. Doubtless because of the large number of students with whom they have had to deal

American universities have hit upon the scheme of dealing with them as though they were identical. A university that had enough bookkeepers found it fairly simple to determine the intellectual stage which any given student had reached. It depended entirely on the number, not the quality of the courses he had attended, the years he had been in residence, and the grades he had secured. Since the student got these grades from the instructor who had taught the course, they were more likely to reflect careful study of the professor than of the subject. Since the examinations were course examinations, the student tended to memorize isolated fragments of information that would be useful on examination; he was not compelled to co-ordinate his information or his thinking about it. Most universities have taught most courses from the Freshman year on as though every student in the course were preparing to devote his life to a study of that particular field, even though ninety per cent of them were clearly taking the course to fill out requirements for graduation, or because they wished to know a little something about the subject.

Universities have been insisting on small-group instruction at great expense for all students in all fields when instruction through lectures would have been better for those who did not intend to specialize. They have insisted on assuming that all tools would be equally useful to all students. They have, for instance, put those in the sciences, including the vast hordes that never expect to do anything in science but who wish to learn something about it, through laboratory routines that were admirably calculated to train the future scientist and to deaden the interest of everybody else. That this system was not without unfortunate effects on American scholarship cannot be doubted. The student entering the Freshman class with a vague notion that perhaps he might like to be a scholar could look forward to seven years to be spent in the painful accumulation of sixty-three courses, perhaps under sixty-three different instructors, involving the acquisition of skills and techniques he would never use, and intensive application to subjects in which he had only a general interest. Since this system was of necessity provided for the pace of the average man, the student of solid worth who was slow to adjust himself to new surroundings might find himself counted a failure. The student prepared for a faster pace must linger with the majority of his classmates; and those who wished to become scholars might well conclude long before receiving a degree that if this was scholarship and education they had had enough of it.

Breadth Without Superficiality

We could see that these things were true with students at all educational levels. In addition, students at each level had certain difficulties of their own. Men and women who have spent three years or more in taking courses and carrying on research in the Graduate School as preparation for college teaching have heretofore been recommended for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy by one department, in which they have done almost all their work. There has been a good deal of complaint from the colleges that these Doctors of Philosophy have not had the general education needed for college teaching. Without debating the truth or falsity of this allegation, we can at least concede that a system of independent departments lends itself to narrow specialization, and some device that will produce breadth without superficiality is called for. Furthermore, these students in graduate schools have supposedly been investigating important problems. It is hard to think of any important problem that can be studied in one department alone. As these problems cross departmental lines, it is certainly desirable that students follow them in their passage without being detained at the departmental boundary. For a student who wishes to devote himself to International Relations, for example, to be compelled to enlist under the banner of one department and fulfill to the letter its requirements for a degree, is to deprive him in a modern university of many of his finest opportunities to understand his problem.

The professional student, too, has had difficulties of his own, resulting chiefly from the constantly increasing length of his education. Professional study may well be started, presumably, at the end of a good general education. But we have assumed first that all of college work was general education, and second, that the longer a man stayed in college the better his education was. Consequently in the effort to get better students in schools of law or medicine we have constantly raised the number of years in college required for entrance to them. This process has in many professions extended the period of training to quite disproportionate lengths. The graduates of some of the so-called best law schools cannot start practice before they are twenty-five, and the graduates of some medical schools of the same grade cannot begin to earn a living until they are past twenty-seven. It has never been established that there was anything mystical about these particular ages or this particular background. Whether four years of strenuous attention to football and fraternities is the best preparation for the study of law, for instance, has never been seriously investigated. When it is investigated, I predict the most startling results.

Education Adjusted to the Individual

In the colleges we have been doing two things under one roof: general education and advanced study. These are distinct functions, but have been somewhat confused in most American colleges. Although in many of them there has been a theoretical shift in interest from general education to advanced study at the end of the student's first two years, the collegiate atmosphere, which might well have been confined to the period of general education, has carried over into the period of advanced study; and the junior or senior has felt slight change in his environment, or in his curriculum, or in the attitude of his instructors toward him. There has been almost no provision for the student who wished or perhaps deserved only a general education. He has received instruction based on the idea that he wished or ought to wish something more. The universities have in general treated every incoming freshman as an aspirant for the bachelor's degree. Many Freshmen, perhaps, would not have desired it except that there was no curriculum leading to a dignified terminus at an earlier period. The reorganization of the educational work of the University of Chicago, therefore, was based on the desire to adjust the University to the individual, to individual needs, and to individual merits at each educational level.

Now that we have seen what the reorganization is and what the reasons for it were, we are in a position to determine how it will affect the individual freshman entering the University of Chicago in the fall of 1931. Our entrance requirements have been simplified, so that a student who graduates from high school in the upper half of his class and receives the recommendation of his principal may gain admission to the University. Students recommended by their principals who are not in the upper half of their graduating class may gain admission through passing supplementary tests administered by the University. The entering freshman will appear next fall a week before the University opens for what is known as Freshman Week. In this period he will be assigned to an adviser who will follow him and his work throughout his entire College career. If he wishes only a general education he will be advised to attend lecture courses designed to give him one. If he has the idea that he would like to go on to the bachelor's degree, but does not know in which field he wishes to do advanced work, he will be advised to attend general lectures until he makes up his mind. If the Freshman thinks at entrance that he wishes to go on to the bachelor's degree or even beyond it, and knows the field in which he wishes to specialize, he will be advised that he may qualify for work in small groups designed to prepare him for advanced study. He will be told about lecture courses that in addition should give him a general education. He will be told about laboratory courses and language courses that he should attend if he plans to qualify for one of the upper divisions in which language or laboratory work is desirable. Printed outlines of all courses offered in the College will be shown him. Sample examinations showing the kind of thing that will be expected of him on completing his college work will be given him to study. In the light of his own particular background and his own particular interests he and his adviser will determine the best way for him to prepare himself for the examination that marks the end of general education and qualification for advanced work. Since attendance at classes will not be required, he will be able to prepare himself in the way that is best for him, in and out of the classroom, on and off the campus.

The Advisers

The student may present himself for the college general examinations at the end of any quarter when in his opinion he is ready to pass them. The student's adviser will give him the benefit of his opinion as to whether he should attempt the examinations or not. Since the examinations are of a new sort, every possible device will be resorted to that might assist the student in knowing how to face them. In all his work he will be given papers and quizzes at least once a quarter which will indicate to him what progress he is making, although they will not affect his chances of graduation. They will be purely for his information and for that of his adviser and instructor. If the student fails in the comprehensive examinations at the end of the College, he may take them again, and may repeat this experience as many times as he cares to, unless and until he becomes a public nuisance. It is therefore clear that the new system adopted in the College is a complete adjustment of the institution to the individual. If the student wishes a general education only, he may secure it. If he wishes to prepare himself for work in the upper divisions, he may do so. If he is slow, he may take as long as he likes to prepare himself for the College examinations. If he is brilliant, he may present himself for these examinations at the end of one quarter in residence.

We expect the average student to spend two years preparing himself for the College examinations. In other words, we do not expect the College course of study to take a much longer or shorter period for the average man than the Junior College course of study has required of everybody in the past. All students will be carefully advised as to the courses they should take. Students preparing themselves for work in the upper divisions will be in small classes in which they will receive a great deal of personal attention. The University is now erecting on the south side of the Midway two dormitories for eight hundred students. The first of these, to accommodate four hundred men, will be ready for occupancy next fall. Faculty members resident in those dormitories will be equipped and expected to give educational guidance to students under their charge. The theory that under the scheme now to be introduced students will wander homeless and alone, trying to figure out what is expected of them, is therefore quite unfounded. Students will receive even more personal attention than they have in the past and will have every assistance in determining the best way to prepare themselves for the examinations.

The student who has passed the College examinations may leave the University with a certificate indicating that he has, insofar as the University is able to determine, a general education. If he has shown himself qualified for work of an advanced character, he may go on into one of the divisions, either into the Humanities, or the Social, Physical or Biological Sciences. Although the professional schools have not yet modified their entrance requirements, it is expected that sooner or later a student who has passed the College examinations, and shown himself qualified for advanced study may enter one of the professional schools on the same basis as he is now permitted to enter one of the upper divisions.

The student on entering one of the upper divisions is prepared to specialize. He has a general education and a good grasp of the main ideas in the field of learning to which he wishes to devote more time and attention. Here again with his adviser he will study printed outlines of courses through which he may prepare himself for the general examinations offered in the division for the Bachelor's, Master's and Doctor's degrees. It is expected that the average student who wishes to secure all these degrees will spend as much additional time in the University as he does at present, namely, five years. The slower student may take a longer time; the brilliant student may present himself after he has been in residence a year for the comprehensive examinations qualifying him for the degree he wishes to obtain. Until June, 1932, students may enter the Junior year of the University of Chicago by transfer from other colleges on exactly the same basis as in the past. After June, 1932, no student will be admitted to one of the upper divisions unless he has either a degree from an accredited college or has passed the examinations for entrance to the division administered by the University of Chicago.

What Reorganization Really is

We have now seen that the reorganization of the University of Chicago is and have learned what the reason for it was. We have observed how it will affect the educational process as it is experienced by any given student. It remains for me only to state what I believe will be the principal educational results of the new system. They are four; and the first of them is that students will be educated in independence. This system is one of opportunity, not compulsion. The student will have all the advice he needs and all the personal attention he can bear. He will not be compelled to develop his character or his intellect. He will be advised as to the best method of doing both.

The second educational result that we expect to achieve we hope to accomplish through general examinations. Instead of passing course after course, forgetting the one he has passed as he passes on to the next, the student will be required to coordinate his information and his thinking about it through general examinations at the end of his course. These examinations will not be mere tests of his memory for facts. They will test rather his ability to organize, to create, and to think.

The third educational result of the reorganization affects the Faculty. We shall now be compelled to think ourselves. We shall have to know what we want a student to know and what we want him to be able to do, instead of contenting ourselves as in the past with discovering what he has been through. We shall have to devise, in other words, an entirely new course of study designed to accomplish our objectives. We can no longer say that a student is educated when he has passed thirty-six courses with a minimum average of sixty-five.

The fourth and final result of the reorganization is that the University is adjusted to the individual. Because it is the most spectacular feature of the plan, the newspapers have quite naturally directed the attention of the public to the fact that under the reorganization of the University of Chicago a student may obtain the Bachelor's degree in less than four years. People all over the country, therefore, have had a picture of the student spending a casual week-end on the Midway and returning to his home in South Dakota with all the degrees that the University of Chicago can award. I beg to call attention to the fact that under the new scheme no student may present himself for any comprehensive examination until he has been in residence a quarter, and no student may present himself for any examination leading to a degree until he has been in residence a year. It is true, however, that since the student under the old scheme, no matter how brilliant he might be, could not leave the Junior College until he had been in residence two years and could not secure the Bachelor's degree until he had been in residence four, the time required for these operations may be materially shortened for some students. The reverse, however, is equally true and equally important. Whereas in the past a student who for any reason was not prepared to go along at the average gait would find himself on probation or perhaps expelled, under the new plan he will be able to take a longer time to complete the work of the College or the work for any degree.

The object of the reorganization was not to speed up the educational process for all students. It was to adjust the educational process and the speed thereof to the needs and equipment of each individual. The results of such a plan are that in the case of some students more time will be required.

In the case of others a shorter time may be needed. In the case of the average man we expect the reorganization to have no affect whatever on the time devoted to education. Education for many people, perhaps for most people, is a slow process. We must not be deluded, however, into thinking that it is equally slow or equally fast for all people. Differences in preparation and ability are enormous. By recognizing them and providing for them we hope to give a better education to everyone.

University of Chicago School of Commerce Revises Program

Complete revision of the educational program of the School of Commerce and Administration of the University of Chicago, designed to provide distinctive training in business and business research, was announced recently by Dean William H. Spencer. The School of Commerce and Administration is the first of the University's group of professional schools to adopt the principles of the educational reorganization recently approved.

The School of Commerce and Administration has abolished course grades and credits, as the University has already done in its college division, and will make comprehensive examinations the basis of graduation.

In addition to requiring students to pass the comprehensive examinations, the School will grant no degree unless a student has served a six months "internship" in business.

"The University of Chicago is not interested merely in a school of business," Dean Spencer said in announcing the new plan. "Routine preparation for business is now being adequately done at many institutions, and this university has no desire to duplicate such training. But the University of Chicago is interested in a distinctive program of training for business in which emphasis is placed upon educational method."

The comprehensive examinations, four in number, will test the student's attainments in the four major objectives of the training in the School. The first will be a qualifying examination, testing understanding of the physical environment of business, the socio-economic environment of business, and the evolutionary aspects of modern business institutions.

Second of the examinations will be one testing the student's mastery of basic subject matter—accounting, statistics, economic theory, business history, business psychology, organization, and communication. The third will test knowledge of methods and problems of management. The final examination will be concerned with the student's knowledge and training in the field of his specialization.

The plan for comprehensive examinations will become operative for students entering the School after the summer quarter of 1932 as candidates for the professional degree in business. The examinations, Dean Spencer said, will be conducted as realistically as possible, stressing the student's ability to analyze and solve actual business problems, his acquaintanceship with business literature, his grasp of descriptive and factual subject matter in the various fields, his appreciation of practical problems of business through actual contact with them, and a comprehensive and related view of the problems of modern business management.

Students will be permitted to take the examinations whenever they are ready, but the qualifying examination must be taken within six months after they enter the school. Students will not be eligible for graduation until they have been formally enrolled in the school for at least nine months.

The supervised "internship" is planned as an effective means of bridging the gap between the university and business. No student will be permitted to engage in this period of actual business experience until he has passed the first two comprehensive examinations. Those serving this apprenticeship will work under the joint supervision of a member of the faculty of the School and a representative of the business in which he is placed. Assurance of co-operation have already been received from many of the leading industrial companies of the country, officials of which believe the new program will produce trained men of the type they desire.

Rawles Heads Collegiate Schools of Business

HOLDING ITS first meeting south of the Ohio River, the thirteenth annual meeting of the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business convened at New Orleans, Louisiana, March 5, 6, and 7, as the guest of Tulane University. Several members of Delta Sigma Pi played important roles at this meeting, and one Delta-sig succeeded another as president of the association. Dean W. A. Rawles, Indiana, who was secretary-treasurer of the Association from 1924 to 1930, and vice-president 1930-1931, succeeded Dean Chester A. Phillips, Iowa, as president. Brother Rawles has served the association in a most conspicuous manner for many years, and his election to the presidency was well deserved.

With the admission of the Colleges of Commerce at Louisiana State University and the University of Arkansas to membership in the Association, a total of 44 schools of commerce and business administration are now members. The officers elected to serve for the year 1931-1932 are as follows: Dean William A. Rawles, Indiana University, president; Dean Willard E. Hotchkiss, Stanford University, vice-president; Dean J. Anderson Fitzgerald, University of Texas, secretary-treasurer. The members of the Executive Committee comprise the aforementioned officers, and Dean Chester A. Phillips of the University of Iowa and Dean Morton A. Aldrich of Tulane University.

President Chester A. Phillips promised a southern flavor which was delightfully given in addresses by Ex-Governor John M. Parker of Louisiana, and Editor John Temple Graves, II, of Birmingham.

President A. B. Dinwiddie of Tulane University delivered an address on "Educational Standards," and Dean J. E. Le-Rossignol of the University of Nebraska styled his contribution "Dr. Flexner on University Training for Business."

The Association also took steps to learn whether all member collegiate schools were maintaining the standards now required for admission to the Association. The Executive Committee was directed to inspect any institution believed to be deficient in any particular and to warn any school or college failing to conform to the standards of the Association that unless it meets those standards within a period of two years it would be dropped from membership in the Association.

A committee was authorized to study the problem of standardizing degrees offered by the member institutions. Dean Chester A. Phillips, president of the Association, appointed Deans C. E. Griffin of the University of Michigan, C. S. Marsh of the University of Buffalo, and F. T. Stockton of the University of Kansas.

Another action provided for a study of business education as proposed in the following resolution:

"Whereas collegiate schools of business have reached an age which warrants a careful appraisal of their accomplishments in training students for entrance into business on a professional plane; and

"Whereas there are available suitable techniques which may be applied to a study of the whole problem of business education with a view to determining the place of collegiate schools of business in the organization of higher education; and

"Whereas there is an apparent need for more information on which to construct a program of instruction to meet the needs of business both from the private and social point of view: Therefore be it

"Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed by the president of the Association to prepare a plan for a comprehensive study of business education at the college level, this committee to report on a plan which might be submitted to one of the foundations for financial assistance at the next annual meeting; and be it further

"Resolved, That this committee be authorized to incur such expenses as may be approved by the Executive Committee in organizing this program of research.

(Signed)

GEORGE A. WARFIELD,
JAMES H. S. BOSSARD,
W. J. MATHERLY,
R. A. STEVENSON."

President Phillips appointed as a committee Dean Russell A. Stevenson of the University of Minnesota, Professor C. O. Ruggles of Harvard University, Professor H. R. Hatfield of the University of California, Professor James H. S. Bossard of the University of Pennsylvania, and Dean W. J. Matherly of the University of Florida.

Topics emphasizing "Personal Qualities Requisite for Success in Business" were discussed by Dean Ralph E. Heilman of Northwestern University, Professor L. L. Thurstone of the University of Chicago, and Marvin L. Frederick, Director of Business Training Courses, General Electric Company.

Addresses upon various features of "Surveys of Schools of Business and Needs for Business Education" were made by Deans Walter J. Matherly, University of Florida, G. A. Warfield, University of Denver, Russell A. Stevenson, University of Minnesota, and Professors Francis H. Bird, University of Cincinnati, and James H. S. Bossard, University of Pennsylvania.

"Trends in Methods of Instruction in Collegiate Schools of Business" was the subject of a conference led by Deans W. H. Spencer of the University of Chicago and C. E. Griffin of the University of Michigan.

"Business Contacts of the Teaching Staff" was the subject mater of a symposium participated in by Associate Dean C. P. Biddle of Harvard University, Dean Reid L. McClung of the University of Southern California and Professor F. Santry Reed of Tulane University

"The Relationship of the School of Business to its Constituency" was the central theme for a series of papers by Director Spurgeon Bell, Ohio State University, Dean Lee Bidgood, University of Alabama, Director A. B. Cox, University of Texas, and Professor M. H. Hunter, University of Illinois.

Two Chapters Installed

Beta Alpha Sigma at Alabama Polytechnic Institute and Zeta Kappa Phi at Dalhousie Granted Charters; Our Active Chapter Roll is Now 54.

WITH THE installation of our Beta Lambda Chapter at Alabama Polytechnic Institute, department of Business Administration, Auburn, Alabama, on March 21, and the installation of our Beta Mu Chapter at Dalhousie University, department of Commerce, Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada, on May 2, two excellent chapters were added to our active chapter roll which now totals 54, and Delta Sigma Pi is once again represented in Canada with an active chapter.

It is interesting to observe that our two most distant chapters, Phi at Southern California and Beta Mu at Dalhousie, are some four thousand miles apart, one-sixth of the distance around the globe, and that our most northern chapter, Alpha Mu at North Dakota, and our most southern chapter, Beta Eta at Florida, are almost two thousand miles apart.

Grand Secretary-Treasurer Wright was the Installing Officer at both installations. At Alabama Poly a large delegation of visiting brothers from our Georgia Tech and Alabama chapters was present, almost forty in fact. At Dalhousie, because of the great distance to our nearest chapter, the visiting brothers were fewer in number, comprising just the official installation team, but they were not lacking in enthusiasm.

The installation ceremonies at Alabama Polytechnic Institute were held on Saturday, March 21. Grand Secretary-Treasurer Wright arrived at noon Friday, and the delegations from the nearby chapters kept arriving every few hours until by midnight over thirty visitors had registered. The installation of the chapter took place Saturday morning, when in the Eastern Star lodge hall the officers of Beta Alpha Sigma, our petitioners, were initiated, followed by the initiation of the actives and alumni in the afternoon. The ritual work was most admirably presented by a well drilled team from our Kappa Chapter at Georgia Tech, their members taking all the parts in the ritualistic services with the exception of that of Head Master, which was given by Brother Wright.

A formal banquet followed at 6:30, which was attended by seventy members and guests, Beta Lambda Chapter having as their guests on this occasion Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of Alabama Polytechnic Institute, and Dr. John W. Scott, head of the Business Administration department. This proved to be a very enjoyable occasion; the talks were brief but exceedingly interesting; the chapter and its officers accepted their responsibilities as a chapter of Delta Sigma Pi in a most serious fashion. The banquet adjourned promptly at 9:15, at which time the newly installed chapter entertained the visiting brothers with a formal dance.

The installation of our Beta Mu Chapter at Dalhousie University took place on Saturday, May 2. Dalhousie University is located at Halifax, Nova Scotia, the largest city in the Maritime Provinces, and is one of the oldest educational institutions in the Dominion of Canada. Grand Secretary-Treasurer Wright, District Deputy Warren F. Brooks, and Fred W. Atherton, Head Master of Gamma Chapter, had to leave Boston at 3 p. m. Thursday in order to reach Halifax Friday evening. This trip necessitated sailing via the S. S. Yarmouth of the Eastern Steamship Lines, from Boston to Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, and thence an all day rail journey through the historic and beautiful land of Evangeline, arriving at Halifax sundown Friday evening.

The visiting brothers were quartered at the luxurious new hotel recently erected by the Canadian National Railway, the Nova Scotian, where the initiation ceremonies and installation banquet were also held.

Zeta Kappa Phi, our petitioners at Dalhousie, having been in operation as a local for several years, had many alumni return to celebrate their installation as a chapter of an international commerce and business administration fraternity. Our Canadian brothers proved most gracious hosts and made every moment of the brief stay of the visiting brothers a truly delightful one.

Beta Mu Chapter was installed Saturday morning, May 2, when the officers were initiated, and following a luncheon at the Nova Scotian Hotel, the remaining actives and all alumni who had returned were admitted to the bonds of Delta Sigma Pi. A formal banquet followed at 8 o'clock in the evening, and this proved particularly enjoyable to the American visitors by virtue of the fact that it was handled throughout according to the old formal Canadian traditions and customs. It was with a great deal of reluctance that the visiting members had to leave Sunday for the long journey homeward.

History of Alabama Polytechnic Institute

The session of the Alabama conference of the Methodist church held at Eutaw in 1855 determined upon the location of a male college in the bounds of that religious body. As Eutaw was located in the western part of the state, more delegates from that part of the state were present than from any other, and the result was that it was voted to locate a college at Greensboro, one of the western cities. The Methodists in the eastern part of the state were not satisfied with this decision and immediately began raising money for a college to be established in the eastern section of the state.

The result was that a charter was issued for the first Alabama Male College on February 1, 1855. Trustees were named, and the college was located at Auburn, Alabama. In 1857 the cornerstone of Main Building was laid and the first session opened October 1, 1859. In November of the same year, at a Methodist conference at Eufaula, the new college presented its claims for denominational support. After a heated debate it was decided to take the Alabama Male College under the patronage of the Methodist church, thus making two Methodist colleges in the same state.

The Civil War started shortly thereafter and the college was compelled to close and did not reopen again until 1866.

The trustees of the Alabama Male College knew that through government aid the college had become primarily an agricultural and mechanical college. Plans for the organization of this type of college were put into definite form and the trustees made a tender of the property to the state of Alabama, which was accepted by the legislature in 1872. The name was changed to the Agricultural and Mechanical College. There was a partial reorganization and a rearrangement of the entire course of study.

The Ritual Team That Installed Beta Lambda

In 1887 Main Building burned with all its contents. While this seemed a disaster it was really a blessing in disguise, for with the insurance received and a liberal appropriation from the legislature, the present Main Building and Chemical Laboratory was erected.

As there had always been a prejudice against an agricultural college in the state, the name of the institution was changed by the legislature in 1899 to the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. The period from 1900 to 1915 was one of increased development and enrollment. The Alabama Polytechnic Institute became known not only through the South but throughout the entire country. All departments were enlarged, new buildings erected, and it became an institution of which the state was justly proud.

During the last few years particularly Alabama Polytechnic Institute has come to the front in all branches of technical learning and its agricultural school is recognized as second to none in the Southland. The coeducational facilities have also increased and there are now almost 300 women in attendance out of approximately 2000 students. Over $1,000,000 has been spent in new buildings the past few years, and a further extensive building program is under way.

History of the School of Business Administration

In 1924 Alabama Polytechnic Institute established the department of Economics and Business Administration, offering courses available in which undergraduates could secure professional training for commercial pursuits. The purpose of the School of Business Administration is to give a thorough scientific training in the fundamental principles of business administration. There were 124 students the first year. In 1926 Dr. John W. Scott, who had previously served as dean of the School of Business Administration of Oklahoma A. & M. College at Stillwater, Oklahoma, was brought to Alabama Poly and placed in charge of this work there. Under his direction this department has grown substantially, both in regard to number of courses offered, in number of students, in number of instructors, and in its prestige. There are now approximately 300 regularly enrolled students in the department. The department also sponsors a monthly magazine of particular interest and value to the business executives of the South.

Our Petitioners

Since 1926 there has been a gradual accumulation of interest in the organization of a professional commerce and business administration fraternity at Alabama Polytechnic Institute. Several attempts were made which did not prove successful, but finally in October, 1928, another attempt was made which did prove successful. A group of nine students organized and a committee was appointed to draw up a constitution and a set of by-laws. Under the guidance of Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of the university; Dr. John W. Scott, dean of the department, and Professor J. M. Herren, an organization was perfected and given the name of Beta Alpha Sigma. Otis De Vaughn was its first president, F. R. Daugeette its first secretary, and C. P. Austin Jr. its first treasurer.

A professional program was outlined and Beta Alpha Sigma began to function as a local commerce fraternity. Obviously, some agitation was developed toward going national, and after due consideration it was decided to petition Delta Sigma Pi, which was done two years ago, since which time Beta Alpha Sigma has operated under the supervision and guidance of our fraternity. They have carried on a most excellent program of professional activity, have maintained high scholarship, and have complied with all our requirements in a very satisfactory manner. The Board of Directors accepted their petition this winter, and on March 21 Beta Alpha Sigma became Beta Lambda Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi.

Although not all of their alumni were able to come back for the installation at this time, many did, and the balance will be initiated at a later date. The following constitute the charter membership of Beta Lambda Chapter:

History of Dalhousie University

IN THE city of Halifax, in the historic province of Nova Scotia, is an institution of learning whose life history is intimately associated with events of vital importance in the histories of three great nations.

The prelude to the story of Dalhousie University may be traced from the events of those stirring days in the early part of the seventeenth century, when the Bourbon kings were striving to plant the fleur-de-lis in the new world. Among the company of adventurers who, under the initiation of Henry de Navarre, sailed to found a new France in "La Cadia," was one Saint Castin, who amassed a fortune from a trading post which he established at the mouth of the Penobscot River. This post, which took from its founder the name of Castine, was fated to play its part in the founding of the first free college of liberal learning in all the Canadian Dominions.

A century and a half passed with continual wars and resulting unsettlement. Certain events, however, bear directly upon this narrative. Through the charter granted to Sir William Alexander by King James VI in 1721, emerged the land of "New Scotia" whence comes the name of Nova Scotia now applied to this province. In the changing fortunes of war, the French settlement of Castine was possessed by the commonwealth of Massachusetts, and later became part of the state of Maine—a French, British and United States possession in turn. During the war of 1812, it was a base for American privateers until captured by a British expedition under Sir John Cope Sherbrooke, who constituted it a customs port of entry. After the Treaty of Ghent, the British forces withdraw to Halifax, taking with them the customs collections amounting to the sum of £11,750. This "Castine Fund" was the first endowment of Dalhousie University, and we may thus trace the origin of this College by the Sea to sources in the history of France, Great Britain, and the United States of America.

It is to Scotland, however, that she owes her birth. Shortly before the evacuation of the Castine ports, George Ramsay, ninth Earl of Dalhousie, had been appointed lieutenant-governor of Nova Scotia, and to him fell the disposition of the "Castine Fund." At that time, the only institution of higher learning in the country was King's College, open only to students of the Anglican faith, and entirely under the control of the Church of England. Lord Dalhousie perceived the great need for a more liberal institution and in 1818 founded the non-sectarian university which bears his name. His last public act in Nova Scotia was the laying of the corner stone on the Grand Parade in 1820. Shortly afterwards his appointment as governor-general necessitated his removal from Halifax.

Due to mismanagement and official opposition, the college of his founding fell upon evil days until 1838, when the Reverend Dr. Thomas McCulloch was called from the famous Pictou Academy to become its first president. An ardent reformer and a friend of the great Canadian statesman, Joseph Howe, this brilliant man kept the institution going largely by the force of his own personality, in the face of tremendous opposition. At his death in 1843 came a crisis—its funds almost exhausted, Dalhousie closed its doors. In 1863 it was reorganized on a new basis and Dalhousie entered upon a new era.

The Reverend James Ross, D.D., became the second president and under his guidance and that of the eminent scholars who constituted its teaching staff, the college prospered for many years. However, financial difficulties again arose. But this time a deliverer was at hand. Dr. Ross resigned in 1885 and was succeeded by the Reverend John Forrest. It was then that George Munro, a brother-in-law of Dr. Forrest, came forward with his magnificent gifts which in all amounted to $320,000. This generous man saved Dalhousie and under Lord John it prospered mightily. When, in 1911, he gave up his office after twenty-six years of splendid service, the college had twice outgrown its quarters, moving first from the Grand Parade to the Forrest Building, and then purchasing the forty acre property known as Studley, where the erection of the stately buildings of modern Dalhousie was begun in 1912.

It was about this time that the fourth and present president took office. Dr. A. Stanley Mackenzie has devoted nineteen years of magnificent work to the development of the new Dalhousie, and the results of his labor and those of his associates are apparent in the university of today, which takes its place in the first rank of Canadian institutions of learning. The departments have grown to include Arts and Science, Law, Medicine, Commerce, Dentistry, Engineering, Pharmacy, and Music. In 1927 Dalhousie established the first School of Fisheries in Canada. The student body numbers nearly 1,000 and its members are drawn from all over this continent and even further afield. Through the generosity of the Carnegie and Rockefeller foundations and of many individual benefactors the endowment has been greatly increased.

By the affiliation, in 1923, of King's College and Dalhousie University, the hopes of Lord Dalhousie were finally realized and the recent erection of the new King's building has added greatly to the Studley campus.

History of the Department of Commerce

To meet the demands of the business world, a department of Commerce was organized in 1920. Through the generosity of Mr. W. A. Black, a prominent business man of Halifax, and who later became Minister of Railways and Canals in the federal government, a gift enabled the university to appoint a professor of commerce. This endowment is known as the W. A. Black Chair of Commerce.

The courses offered by the newly organized department of Commerce lead to the degree of Bachelor of Commerce. The registration in this department increased very slowly for the first five years. The first Bachelor of Commerce degree was awarded in 1923. In 1928 Professor James Macdonald was appointed head of the department, further changes made in the courses, and since that time the department has experienced a very satisfactory growth. It is now the third largest department on the Dalhousie campus, being surpassed only by the Arts and Science department and the Medical department, and surpassing in size the Dental, Law, and Engineering departments.

Our Petitioners

The history of Zeta Kappa Phi goes back to April 1, 1928, for on that day twenty-two students of the department of Commerce met and adopted a constitution and set of by-laws, which had been prepared by a previously appointed committee, and thus Zeta Kappa Phi came into existence. Of course, there had been many earlier meetings to discuss the matter and to appoint various committees to prepare plans. These meetings were held as early as 1927, but they were purely organizational in character.

Zeta Kappa Phi can be considered a logical outgrowth of the Commerce Society, an organization of commerce students founded shortly after the opening of the department in 1920. The Commerce Society filled a very important need in the department. Meanwhile, fraternities had been formed in the other departments of the university, and several students in Commerce began to discuss plans of forming a professional fraternity in their own field. Upon the opening of the fall term in 1927, several of the men in the Commerce department decided upon a Commerce residence. Accordingly, the Commerce House was established that fall at 14 Oxford Street. With ten students in residence in the Commerce House, it was quite natural that the question of forming a professional commerce and business administration fraternity should receive thorough discussion. While the Commerce Society had its place, it could not supply all that was wanted by the students, the chief deficiency being that the Commerce Society did not offer any means for the graduate to keep in touch with the university, and especially the department of Commerce. To fill these wants Zeta Kappa Phi came into existence.

The fraternity continued to perfect itself during the coming year, and in the following year moved to a larger house at 69 Spring Garden Road. In the meantime several plans for the development of the fraternity were submitted, and after much investigation it was decided to petition an international professional commerce and business administration fraternity. Overtures were made to Delta Sigma Pi, and after considerable correspondence, Grand Secretary-Treasurer Wright went to Halifax to look over the Dalhousie situation in April, 1930. Shortly thereafter Zeta Kappa Phi voted unanimously to petition Delta Sigma Pi. Their petition was completed and filed, since which time they have been operating under the supervision of our fraternity.

The Board of Directors accepted their petition this spring and granted them our Beta Mu Chapter, and the following charter members were initiated on Saturday, May 2, 1931:

SLOWLY, BUT surely, the Life Membership Plan adopted at the Tenth Grand Chapter Congress of Delta Sigma Pi is going merrily on its way. Since the last issue of THE DELTASIG, nine different members, representing nine different chapters, added their names to our Roll of Loyalty. The only new chapter to go on this list was Omega at Temple University.

We now find a total of 25 chapters with one or more life members. There has been no radical change in the relative standing of the chapters, but we do expect to have a substantial increase in the roll of life members when the annual billing of alumni for national dues takes place on August 1.

Alumni, if you want a life membership numbered less than 100, better forward that check NOW! Soon, it will be too late.

The Business Biography of John Wanamaker

By Joseph H. Appel

No one can read this business biography of America's Merchant Pioneer without being inspired. The author's entire business life of thirty years has been with the Wanamaker organization, so he had plenty of opportunity for observing the personality of John Wanamaker at close range.

John Wanamaker has often been referred to as the "pioneer advertising merchant," who staged his stores with lavish exhibits and display rooms, who originated the "money-back" custom of offering to the public the privilege of returning unsatisfactory or unwanted goods, who helped to establish in America the one-price system which eliminated the uncertainty of haggle and barter, who started as a poor country boy and fifty years later was proclaimed by the President of the United States "the greatest merchant in America" and his store "a model for all other stores of the same kind throughout the world."

This book is many-sided—a manual of business success and salesmanship, of advertising and publicity, which by its dramatic quality appeals to all lovers of biography.

This book is recommended to all who are interested in succeeding in their chosen vocation, as it is an authoritative and interesting biography of one of the greatest business men in the history of the country. It will inspire you and you will surely be able to profit from reading it.

Business Adrift

By Wallace B. Donham

This book is written by the dean of the Graduate School of Business Administration of Harvard University and is one that every alumnus of Delta Sigma Pi should read, as it deals in a rather uncompromising manner with present business conditions of the country and of the world, and describes an intelligent plan for curing them. Dean Donham is a business man of wide experience, and he looks squarely at our disorganized business structure and analyzes the problems we must meet and solve during the coming generation. Without sentimentality he presents all the facts that threaten the economic well-being of America and the world.

This book is highly recommended to our readers and should be read by everyone who recognizes the obligation to understand the causes of our present depression and to do his share in preventing a repetition of it.

Management Problems

By Brother G. T. Schwenning
Alpha Lambda

This book consists of a series of addresses on selected problems in management which were delivered by specialists at the University of North Carolina during the academic year 1929-30, under the auspices of the University of North Carolina branch of the Taylor Society, which Brother Schwenning organized several years ago there. Several members of our North Carolina chapter have been active in the affairs of this society.

Part 1, dealing with textile problems, would probably be of interest only to those interested in the textile industry, but parts 2 and 3, covering such subjects as Management and Technological Unemployment, the Management of Man Power, Management Improves with the Calendar, Scientific Marketing Management, Scientific Management in University Libraries, Power Source as a Problem in Industrial Management, etc., would be of interest to a great many of our readers.

ATLANTA

By Norman W. Pettys

QUITE A FEW members of the Atlanta Alumni Club recently made a trip to Auburn, Alabama, to assist in the installation of our newest chapter—Beta Lambda. Let it be said here and now that each and every one of us had the greatest time ever. This organization is indeed proud of our new brothers and we stand ready at all times to help them.

Right upon the heels of our return to Atlanta, the Atlanta Alumni Club and Kappa Chapter had the extreme pleasure of having as guest Gig Wright. An informal banquet and meeting was held and his talk was most enjoyable. (Come again, Gig.) The same week was the annual formal dance given by the Druid Hills Golf Club on March 27, 1931. This has indeed been a memorable month to the brothers living in Atlanta.

We are indeed proud to welcome as the only honorary member of Kappa Chapter and the Atlanta Alumni Club, Robert R. Johnson, president of the Campbell Coal Company of Atlanta. Brother Johnson has done much to build up the Georgia Tech Evening School of Commerce, particularly in the way he has gone about to give the school a new muchly needed building. He is indeed worthy of the name of Brother of Delta Sigma Pi.

Well, that's all for this time. Happy vacation. Remember to give us a visit when you come to Atlanta. A royal Southern welcome awaits you.

BUFFALO

By D. A. Fuller, Jr.

THERE HAS been considerable activity in the Buffalo Alumni Club since the last issue of THE DELTASIG.

A dinner meeting was held on the evening of March 13, at which time Ed Schujahn, Grand President, gave a talk of considerable interest regarding national activity and future possibility of the fraternity. Also at this same meeting the following officers were elected: Carl Guenther (AK), president; Ronald E. Daniels (AK), vice-president; and Denton A. Fuller Jr. (AT), secretary-treasurer.

On the evening of April 10 we held another dinner meeting at which time the moving pictures of the recent convention in Detroit were shown.

The dinner-dance given by the active chapter Alpha Kappa at the Park Lane was well attended by alumni who declared it an outstanding success.

OMAHA

By Thomas E. Corrigan

THE OMAHA Alumni Club, organized last October, has had a very successful year in every respect. Our monthly meetings, held in the Beta Theta chapter house on the first Tuesday of every month, are being well attended. Likewise are our weekly luncheons, now being held every Thursday noon in the alcove of the Grill Room of the Knights of Columbus Club.

We are proud of the fact that in this mid-western city we have gathered together in our club, Deltasigs from eight universities. Alumni from chapters at South Dakota, Iowa, Illinois, Tennessee, Wisconsin, Ohio State, Nebraska, and Creighton are active within our group. If there are any other alumni within the vicinity of Omaha whom we have not included within our group, we would like very much to have them make themselves known to us.

Our present officers are Henry C. Lucas (AA), president; James McMullen (Ψ), vice-president; Thomas E. Corrigan (BΘ), secretary, and Lawrence A. Cusack (BΘ), treasurer.

The club has had several delightful social affairs during the past year, beginning with a banquet and dance held the evening of the Creighton-Drake football game, which was well attended by members of the Des Moines Alumni Club as well as by many actives from the Drake, Nebraska and Creighton chapters. Another memorable event was a formal dinner-dance which we sponsored on New Year's Eve. We were honored by a visit from Grand Secretary Wright on January 20. A luncheon was held for him at noon and, cooperating with the local chapter, a banquet was given in his honor that evening.

We are indebted to Beta Theta Chapter for invitations to the Creighton Pan-Hellenic formal held last Tuesday evening, April 7, and, as is to be expected, many of us took advantage of the occasion and took the evening off.

Of special interest to alumni members is the invitation again offered by Beta Theta to attend the Creighton prom to be held Friday, April 17, and the local chapter's own spring formal the following Friday. It looks like a couple of busy week-ends for somebody.

We of the Omaha Alumni Club at this time extend to any Deltasig our most cordial invitation of meeting with us at any time when he has the occasion to be in our fair city.

ST. LOUIS

By Roger E. Constance

THE ST. LOUIS Alumni Club has had a successful winter season and we are still doing business at the old stand.

We have held regular business meetings throughout the winter and at several of these we have been addressed by prominent business men. We have cooperated with the Alpha Chi Chapter at Washington University in giving several well-attended dances.

What we really pride ourselves upon, however, is the attendance at our weekly luncheon which is held each Thursday at twelve noon in the Famous-Barr Tea Room. These luncheons will continue throughout the summer, as has been our custom in past years. Any and all visiting Deltasigs are cordially invited to drop in at these luncheons.

We regret that Joe R. Moody, one of the most faithful attendants at our meetings and luncheons, has been transferred to New York. We are glad, however, that he has received a well earned promotion.

SAN FRANCISCO

By Belden S. Gardner

THE SAN FRANCISCO Alumni Club and Rho Chapter held a very successful initiation and banquet on Sunday, April 12. A. F. Hockenbeamer, president of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, and one of the most outstanding business men at California, was initiated as an honorary member of Rho chapter at a very impressive initiation ceremony. This joint alumni-chapter affair honored Brother Robert Sproul, recently elected president of the University of California, and a pearl badge was presented to him during the banquet. About sixty were present at this enjoyable affair.

On April 7 we held our regular luncheon at the Masonic Club and had about fifteen present. It looks now as if we would be able to hold all of our regular monthly luncheons there, the next one to be held on May 5. The success of our recent affairs is encouraging after a winter of comparative inactivity, and with the interest now being displayed by our alumni, we expect to have a flourishing alumni club in the bay district.

ALPHA SIGMA

is very proud of the fourteen initiated neophytes who have promise of much future worth. The following men were initiated on February 28 at the University of Alabama:

Garet Aldridge
Henri Aldridge
Percy Benton
Paul Caldwell
Harle Bailey
Hugh Gachet
Paul Haygood
Jack Ogden
Dan Haughton
James Shaver
Thomas Starlin
Albert Tully
George Warren
Paul Thomas

Immediately following the initiation, a banquet was held in honor of the newly initiated men at the McLester Hotel. Various speeches were had, including remarks by members of the senior class, faculty members, new initiates, and regular members. The banquet was a huge success.

The centennial celebration of the University of Alabama will take place on May 10-12. Plans for a great historical pageant are well under way. Mr. Theodore H. Viehman of New York is in charge of the pageant, and a great success is assured. Alpha Sigma has an important part to take both in the pageant on May 11 and in broadcasting different episodes of the history of the university over WAPI. All Deltasigs are requested to tune in over WAPI on afternoons from now until May 10.

It is with much pleasure that Alpha Sigma announces the election of Cephias Smith to Beta Gamma Sigma. Brother Smith was elected to membership recently, his election being announced at the annual Senior Class day exercises held on April 10.

Plans have been made for the Delta Sigma Pi picnic, to be held on April 11. All brothers will get together on Saturday afternoon, and a gay time is assured all. Last year the picnic was a huge success, and this year it cannot fall short.

BETA LAMBDA

passes into its second month of existence well established on the campus, and possessing a chapter personnel that has obtained unusual distinction in every phase of campus activity.

Sabel Shanks, Head Master, holds the unique position of being chairman of the student social committee, and is a member of the executive cabinet of the Associated Undergraduate Students. He is also a member of Blue Key, national leadership fraternity.

Jack Capell was recently honored with election to Phi Kappa Phi, the campus highest scholastic fraternity.

Sam Fort was elected business manager of the Glomerata, student annual, in the spring elections. Fort is a member of O. D. K. and has recently been pledged Scabbard and Blade, honorary military organization. He is vice-president of the Executive Cabinet.

Beta Lambda's success in the elections also included business manager and editor-in-chief of the Plainsman, bi-weekly college paper. J. Roy Wilder, the new business manager, has also been pledged to Scabbard and Blade, Victor R. White Jr. was elected to the editor's position.

Sam Grubbs is representing the chapter in athletics. He is one of the pitchers on the baseball nine.

At present the chapter is sponsoring a series of addresses to be delivered to the students of Business Administration by prominent figures throughout the South.

BETA IOTA

initiated six new men February 28 after which an informal banquet was held. All the new members are fine fellows and should make fine members. The new members will not forget hell week soon. Nine members will be initiated in May.

Several business men have delivered interesting speeches every other Monday night at the meetings.

Arrangements are being completed for a banquet to be held May 2 at Karem Temple, the local headquarters for the Shriners. This will be a date affair.

M. S. Carroll, professor of Accounting, will return this fall. He has been attending Chicago University where he has been doing work on his Ph.D. degree.

Cecil H. Fewell, Texas, instructor in Accounting, will not be back next year. He has been a great help to Beta Iota, and his services will be missed.

Although this is Beta Iota's first year as a chapter of Delta Sigma Pi we feel as though we have made progress and hope to make more progress each year and always be an asset to Delta Sigma Pi.

THE INTERVAL

between the last DELTASIG and the publishing of these notes has been rather tranquil for Alpha Kappa Chapter. Perhaps in deference to the annual St. Patrick's night frolic which took place March 17 at the Park Lane Apartments. It was a gala affair. Dinner at seven-thirty, so the announcements read, and when it actually was served at nine-fifteen or thereabouts, it only whetted our appetites the more keenly. The fair ones were delighted with the favors—gay little silver bracelets, embossed with the Delta Sigma Pi monogram. Buffalo's renowned Twentieth Century orchestra very ably provided music for dancing and two a. m. came all too soon. Much credit to the committee; the party was a huge success and well attended.

A dinner was held Saturday, March 28, at Gandy's Restaurant in honor of Ralph Francemont's forthcoming marriage to Irma Middleton which took place Saturday, April 4. All the brothers join in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Franclemont much happiness.

An alumni dinner was held Friday, April 10, at Gandy's restaurant. After a very excellent dinner, movies were shown of the Detroit convention. These proved highly interesting. Among those present were Ed Schujahn, Grand President, Norman Schlant, New York, and Denton Fuller, Miami. The attendance, as a whole, was disappointing. If we are to have a Buffalo Alumni Club, the brothers have got to get behind it.

Ed Holt's genial presence is missed about the house these days. However, when duty beckons, we must heed the call and all good wishes for Ed's success in his new capacity at the Schenectady branch of the Travelers' Insurance Company are the sentiments of Alpha Kappa.

The Ubessa Follies, an annual event put on by the University of Buffalo's Evening Session Students' Association and soon to take place, is to have Walter A. Giles at the helm this year. Brother Giles was recently appointed chairman and is certain to give us a real show.

ALPHA PSI

is now in the midst of a tremendous rushing program, the results of which, it is hoped, will be the initiation into the chapter of about eight or ten good men. Senior Warden Sherry, who is in charge of the drive, is working hard and industriously, but as yet has not received the "good ol'" Alpha Psi support that has always evidenced itself in former rushing drives. There is little to fear, however, for the boys always come through in the pinch. Adjectives are inadequate in describing this final rush of the year, but the scope and size of the drive can best be judged by the contents of the combination social calendar and rushing program which is as follows:

Smoker, Tuesday, April 14

Formal Dinner-Dance, Saturday, April 18

Luncheon, Friday, April 24

Smoker, Wednesday, April 29
Smoker, Tuesday, May 12
Luncheon, Friday, May 22
Smoker, Thursday, May 28

At the annual election of officers held at the Reynolds Club on Wednesday, March 4, the five more important offices were filled as follows:

Head Master . . Henry Maschal
Senior Warden Joseph R. Sherry
Scribe . . . Fred Kringning, Jr.
Treasurer . . . Vincent Hrvat
Correspondent . Joseph Kousser

The rushing for the spring quarter opened up with a bang on Thursday April 2 with a dinner-smoker at the Wedgewood Hotel. The event afforded a double treat for the members and rushees, for we were honored by the presence of Dean William H. Spencer and Brother Wright, Grand Secretary-Treasurer, and both these men favored us with interesting talks. Following the talks, the members and rushees engaged in various kinds of card games, and we must announce at this time that the versatile Brother Wright is quite adept and quick to learn.

The next rushing event of the quarter was a smoker at the Reynolds Club on Tuesday, April 14. Dr. J. H. Cover, a member of the C. & A. faculty, was the principal speaker and his general topic was "Business Readjustments."

On Saturday, April 18, the boys attended, en masse, the annual Deltasig spring formal which is sponsored by Beta, Zeta, Alpha Psi and Alpha Omega Chapters. This is one of the social functions that Alpha Psi members always look forward to, and this year the zeal and enthusiasm was even greater than heretofore. The affair was held in the grand ballroom of the Stevens Hotel and with the rhythmic strains of the sweet and hot music of Harry Kelly's orchestra captivating the romantic impulses of the 132 couples till the "wee small hours," it must be pronounced a real success.

At present, Brother Lay, president of the C. & A. Council, and his committee are hard at work completing plans for the annual C. & A. banquet which will be held at the Shoreland Hotel on Friday, May 8. Fermio Zancanaro, retiring Alpha Psi Scribe, is another member of the committee, so Deltasig is, as usual, well represented.

CINCINNATI

By Edward T. Locke

"IN SPRING the young man's fancy turns to . . . women, exams, sports, (check one or more)."

On March 31 we had the pleasure of entertaining Gig Wright. This was his first visit to dear old Cincy in a couple of years. Notice of his coming was very short but our alumni and active members responded nobly and we had a very good attendance at our banquet which was held in one of the beautiful dining rooms of the new Netherland-Plaza, Cincinnati's and the world's finest hotel.

Gig told us a lot about what had happened in the past and a great deal more of what will happen in the future. An informal discussion was held during which we thrashed out many of our local problems and we were warned to guard against others which may arise.

Since our last writing we have had either a smoker or a meeting each week. Following our meeting of the 8th, held at Ed Uhl's house, at which we had the largest attendance of the school year (why the largest attendance—Ed Uhl's hospitality??) we pledged three men. The pledges were very deeply impressed by the pledging ceremony which was conducted by Fred Dixon in the absence of Bob Othling. The date for their initiation has not been decided but we presume it will be sometime in May.

Our bridge parties which are held once a month at the Hotel Gibson are very well attended. All details are handled by Fred Dixon and he has succeeded in interesting a number of the previously inactive alumni to the point that they are coming around to meetings. The date for the next bridge party will be announced in our monthly publication, The DeltaSig-Nal.

Delta Sigma Pi has entered its "future Davis cup prospects" in the tennis intramurals: John Fairbanks, Ed Uhl, Charley Goozman, Leo Woerner. These "racketeers" are really "there" and if they get the breaks, they'll come through.

We've found another way of interesting local alumni—weekly luncheons. Each Thursday we hold a luncheon from 12:00 to 1:30 p. m. at the Red Lion Tavern located on 7th Street between Walnut and Vine Sts., in Cincinnati. Our attendance has been increasing each week and we want all of our alumni to be present soon. If there are any men who visit Cincinnati frequently, try to reach here on Thursday and join us.

Leo Woerner has a very important part (Pony Chorus) in the Fresh Painters Musical Comedy, "G'wan and Kiss Her."

Howard Wade, our worthy treasurer, has recently been initiated into Scabbard and Blade.

Incidentally, all of the other chapters are supposedly receiving a copy of our monthly publication, The DeltaSig-Nal. If you are not, let us know. We would also like to receive copies of your paper if you publish one. We are endeavoring to make The DeltaSig-Nal an interesting paper and it may be possible to get a lot of pointers from those publications which have been in existence longer than our "baby."

If any of the brothers get around to Cincinnati during the vacation period we would like to see them. We have some very nice places here to enjoy ourselves and even though they aren't new to us, perhaps you can get a kick out of them. At any rate, jot down the name and telephone number of our our Head Master, Scribe or Treasurer and give us a buzz if you reach the city.

CREIGHTON

By Raymond F. Finnegan

AS THE END of the college year approaches, Beta Theta Chapter is forming plans to insure bright prospects when school begins again in the fall.

Seven men were added to the chapter roll at an initiation held late in March. Those receiving the formal initiation were, John Malone, Thomas Tighe, William Kellogg, Joseph Murphy, William Billotte, Bernard Conway, and John Gladowski. This initiation raised the number of active members to 37. With only 7 men graduating this spring, Beta Theta will have a membership of 30 when classes are again resumed next fall. As most of these men are upperclassmen, the chapter feels that the prospects are bright for an outstanding year in the history of Beta Theta in 1931 and 1932.

In order to build up a more favorable feeling in the freshman commerce class toward Delta Sigma Pi, a smoker for the freshmen was held at the chapter house April 20. The value of a commerce fraternity to the commerce student was explained by the officers and the plan for the freshman achievement cup was outlined. This cup will be presented to the outstanding freshman in the commerce class at the annual "Last Lap" banquet which will be held sometime late in May.

Beta Theta's spring formal party was held April 24 at the Birchwood club. Over 150 couples danced to the strains of the Peonians at this affair and a new Rose of Deltasig was formally installed. Miss Doris Adkins, Omaha, a junior in the College of Commerce will hold this honor until our next party. At an impressive ceremony, Miss Kathryn Downing, Creighton's first Rose of Deltasig, presented Miss Adkins with a bouquet of red roses and formally announced her as her successor to the honor. After the ceremony, members of the fraternity and their partners danced to the strains of "Rose of Deltasig."

The high scholastic standing of Delta Sigma Pi on the Creighton campus is evidenced by the announcement that Leo Reynolds, Head Master of our chapter, has received an appointment into Alpha Sigma Tau, honorary fraternity of Jesuit universities. Membership in this fraternity is based on high scholarship and general worth to the College of Commerce. Last year's selection for this honor was also a member of Delta Sigma Pi and Beta Theta's first Head Master, Frank Pellegrin. Edward Stancyk further added to the honors received by Beta Theta through his election to the Students' Union Board of Governors as Senior Commerce representative. Beta Theta's activity on the campus is further attested to by the fact that the editors of the two major publications are members of the chapter as are two members of Alpha Sigma Tau, two members on the Union Board of Governors, the presidents of all four commerce classes, three members of the track team, three members of the football team and numerous other officers of campus organizations and clubs.

With the record of the past year to encourage us and an active and enthusiastic membership, Beta Theta Chapter looks forward optimistically to the opening of school next fall.

We would remind all brothers that Deltasigs at Creighton will be happy to extend the glad hand to any members who may come to Omaha this summer. Members may always be found by coming to the chapter house at 2770 Davenport Street.

DENVER

By George R. Walter

THE COMING of spring always reminds us of the fact that the school year will soon be brought to a close; finals will be forgotten in the anticipation of summer vacations and jobs. For the members of Alpha Nu Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi this year has indeed been a most pleasurable one and it is one which will not be easily forgotten.

This has been the last year that some of our best known and best liked brothers could serve Alpha Nu. Paul Gourley, George Walter, Ed Kappe, Dick Tydings, and George Jensen and many others comprising a long list have fulfilled important offices in this chapter with unusual success. The rest of the chapter feels its loss, but, nevertheless, we wish all of our graduating brothers health, wealth, and happiness. We hope that they will not forget us.

The month of May always brings to Alpha Nu a heightened social season. The big annual spring initiation was held on May 9, 1931 at Wellshire Country Club, one of Denver's finest golf clubs. Formal initiation rites were held in the afternoon at two o'clock for eight men. This formal initiation climaxed a hell week which was doubtless enjoyed by all. At least it was enjoyed by the actives.

Immediately following the ritual activities a banquet, at which the neophytes were honored, was held. Alpha Nu is indeed proud of its new members and it was with great pleasure that actives and alumni gathered at our banquet to welcome them into the chapter.

At nine o'clock that same evening Alpha Nu entertained at its formal spring dance which was also held at Wellshire. This dance is reputedly the best that has ever been given and Alpha Nu is grateful to Dick Tydings, our able Master of Festivities, whose efforts made the dance the delightful affair that it was.

In retrospect Alpha Nu and its officers feel that we have nearly completed a successful year. During the year our house has been very well filled at all times—which fact is a record since most of the men at the University of Denver live at home and available house men are few in comparison. We have had successful initiations and our social affairs have occupied the spotlight. In the six years that Alpha Nu has been a chapter of Delta Sigma Pi we have set unusual and high standards which have been lived up to at all times. Next year those actives who will be returning to school will carry on the lofty ideals of Delta Sigma Pi and keep up the high standards of Alpha Nu Chapter.

COMING ROUND

to the close of another year—a year tempered by depression, yet to Alpha Omega Chapter it was a successful year. We have remained a sound structure, and were not affected by the few who found it necessary to drop out of school. Coming up to the last initiation of the year Alpha Omega Chapter numbers 29 active members.

Under the able chairmanship of James V. Nolan of Alpha Omega the annual spring formal dance plans were completed. This is an annual affair to which the four chapters in the Chicago district lend support. Alpha Omega is well over its attendance quota and reports from the other chapters indicate that the capacity of the Stevens Hotel main dining room will be taxed. Harry Kelley and his Stevens Hotel Orchestra will furnish the music.

The first part of June will bring the annual old timers' night, in conjunction with the final initiation of the year, founders' day banquet, and the initiation of our first honorary member. Fifteen pledges will be initiated at that time.

With the initiation of fifteen pledges Omega will be materially strengthened. We will lose only about five members by graduation and this will leave an active membership of forty to start the new year.

A wish for continued success and progress Brother Deltasigs!

pauses a moment to view with you the events of the past year and then to turn and gaze into the future to try and fathom the clearing mist of uncertainty to give us a glimpse of our chapter as it will be at the beginning of the next school year.

Our chapter has only four graduating seniors: Charles Biklen, Charles Graves, Kenneth H. Clark, and Lester Page. Our present membership is composed of 19 actives and 5 neophytes. We plan another initiation on May 24. This will make an active chapter of between 15 and 20 brothers returning to school next fall.

On March 24 Alpha Iota held formal initiation at the new Kirkwood Hotel. This was probably the best initiation ever put on by this chapter. Three men became brothers: Robert A. Curry, John Andriano Jr., and Donald Pace. Following the important business meeting which was held immediately after the initiation, a buffet lunch was served.

Election of officers was held at our regular meeting on April 1, 1931. The following brothers were chosen to guide us during the coming year:

- Head Master* . . . Ivan Anton
Senior Warden
 Marvin C. Whatmore
Junior Warden . Russell Keeling
Treasurer . . . Clarence Kading
Scribe . . . Kenneth W. Hill
Historian . . . Howard Dunkerton
Senior Guide . . W. George Potts
Chapter Adviser Professor Bohlman

Under the guidance of these officers, and with the cooperation of the entire chapter, we can expect to surpass anything that has yet been attained.

The final social event of the year will be a spring dance to be given May 23. A committee is at work on the arrangements. We also plan open house during the Drake relays to be held April 24 and 25.

Alpha Iota feels justly proud of what they have accomplished this year in the way of advancement. Much of the credit is due to the work of the executive committee composed of the Head Master, Senior Warden, Treasurer, and Scribe. This committee has been unusually efficient in carrying forward the interests of the chapter. We feel confident that we will make the coming year better than ever.

of the school year is not far away. Beta Eta has been very active and we hope that we have accomplished something of worth during the year. There is still much to be done and we are working hard to get our house in order. Fourteen of our best men are graduating this semester and we will miss them grievously. We hope they will make as good alumni as they have been active members and we believe we will hear of them in the business world.

The chapter took an active interest in the newly organized basketball team. A professional fraternity entering athletics is an innovation on our campus, and has met with much favorable comment. It is believed that other fraternities will enter the field next year. Delta Sigma Pi plans to develop the team and arrange an extensive schedule next year. A group picture of the team will be found elsewhere in this issue.

Perhaps the highlight of our professional activities was a smoker given in honor of Mr. George Babeock, retired industrialist. For several years Mr. Babeock was superintendent of the Dodge plant, and has long been active in the business world. His instructive talk was followed by a round-table discussion. The evening was thoroughly enjoyed by the members as well as the Dean of our college and faculty members.

At the first regular meeting in March new officers were elected for the coming year. The new officers are:

- Head Master* . . . Lyle S. Hiatt
Senior Warden . . W. L. Johnson
Scribe . . . . . O. B. Collier
Treasurer . . . Ira W. Strickler
Junior Warden Mark W. Eastland
Chancellor . . . H. D. Sammons
Historian . . . . G. B. Calmes
Senior Guide . . . Arthur W. Mize
Junior Guide . . . R. L. Hester
Master of Ceremonies
 W. E. Halsey
Master of Festivities
 J. T. Landon

Six of our members are running for prominent political offices in the student body elections to be held soon. The interesting feature is that three are candidates for one party and three for the other party. Some of the members are actually opposing each other. Regardless of which party wins the election, therefore, Delta Sigma Pi is sure to be represented in our student government.

At the present time Beta Eta is busily engaged in securing new members. We are planning to initiate about fifteen new men soon and this will help to replenish our ranks which would otherwise be rather thin after graduation.

KAPPA HAS had plenty of excitement and interesting things happen since the last issue of THE DELTASIG; these events have all been highlights with us.

Beta Lambda showed us all a wonderful time, while Kappa was visiting them on the week-end of March 21 for the purpose of installing their new chapter. Those Auburn boys have plenty of true Southern hospitality; they are the most wonderful hosts that we Kappa boys have ever seen. We wonder how Head Master Sabel Shanks ever made and carried out all the wonderful plans for that big event. That just comes natural to Sabel, as he is chairman of the social committee for Alabama Poly. The boys from Kappa are looking forward to another visit to Auburn soon; several of the members plan to attend the annual spring dances at Auburn.

All of the brothers enjoyed the good fellowship of the brothers from Alpha Sigma Chapter who attended the installation ceremonies at Auburn. If you missed this great occasion, you have something to regret. Just feature about 75 Deltasigs from three big chapters assembled together for two days. It was almost like a Deltasig convention. Everybody enjoyed the occasion very much, and have done nothing but make pleasant remarks about that week-end, which will be long remembered by all Deltasigs who were present.

Kappa Chapter gave their annual formal dance Friday night, March 27, at Druid Hills Golf Club. The dance was a wonderful success; about 400 were present for the occasion. Kappa has made quite a name for Delta Sigma Pi by giving these formal dances each year.

Guy Swanson has just been elected president of the student body for next year. He is now president of the junior class and has done some wonderful work for the school. Guy is the only man that we have ever known to be unanimously elected by each class in school. This proves the extent of his popularity. Bernard Suttler has been president of the student body for this year, and has done some splendid work for the school.

Kappa had an initiation on April 12 and eight pledges were taken in. This was one of the finest classes of pledges that have been initiated, most of these men being the leaders from the freshman class. They were: Jack Boswell, Greer Witcher, Charlie Swinford, Charlie Welch, Clark Simpson, Frank Brandes, Tom North, and Robert R. Johnson.

We are glad to announce that Kappa initiated Mr. Robert R. Johnson with the class of April 12. Brother Johnson is the first honorary member that Kappa has initiated. He is president of the Campbell Coal Company, and has just given the school a wonderful new commerce building, the latest thing in design and equipment. Brother Bob has so much interest in the students of commerce that he equipped the new building with a roof garden, and dance floor large enough to accommodate about 300 couples. This dance floor has a large radio with victrola combination, and a baby grand piano for the use of the students who want to use it.

Kappa Chapter will have its annual election of officers on April 19 and much interest is being created over this meeting. The officers for this year have done some wonderful work, and we hope that the new officers will keep the good work up. Kappa is really a wide awake chapter, and the plans for the next year will have to be handled by very competent men.

Since Brother Bob Johnson has given the school the wonderful new building, the chapter plans to give more socials in the form of tea dances. We hope to have functions of this type every few weeks, and this seems to be heartily approved by all the brothers of the chapter.

Grand Secretary-Treasurer Wright was our guest on Tuesday, March 24. Kappa honored him with a dinner at the Henry Grady Hotel. Brother Wright told us some very interesting things about Delta Sigma Pi, which we had never had the pleasure of hearing about. Everyone enjoyed his visit and is looking forward to his next visit which we hope will be real soon.

ALPHA PI

is at present making plans for the initiation of the men pledged during the early part of the second semester. Harold F. Lusk, who this semester came to Indiana University as an assistant professor in Business Law, is our outstanding pledge. We feel fortunate in being able to increase our chapter roll with men of Professor Lusk's calibre.

Alpha Pi, through its faculty members, has been instrumental in securing prominent leaders in business to address students of the School of Commerce and Finance. Mr. W. R. Allen, personnel manager of L. S. Ayers & Co., Indianapolis, gave a talk on "Employees' Health Control in Industry." Recently Col. Rees, assistant vice-president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., was given a banquet in his honor in the Student Building, at which time he delivered a speech on "The Importance of Scientific and Business Training for Success in Industrial Life."

As another school year is nearly completed, Alpha Pi views the accomplishment of its members with favor. Next year the chapter shall miss three of its outstanding men, George Murphy, Eugene Denham, and John Day. Brothers Murphy and Day are past Head Masters, and also members of numerous campus honorary organizations. Brother Denham is a Beta Gamma Sigma.

THE COMMERCE

Mart, the annual formal party of the College of Commerce, took place on February 20 at the Iowa Memorial Union. Arnold Vonsien as chairman of the committee certainly put over one of the best parties of the year. Dan Russo and his Oriole orchestra provided the music and entertainment.

At two o'clock Saturday morning after the Mart, formal initiation was held at the chapter house for nine pledges. The new brothers are: J. Edmond Andersen, Max Cadwallader, Elmer G. Davis, Chester M. Hayes, Albert D. Hass, G. Raymond Nelson, Wesley J. Simpson, Robert E. Spriggs, and John O. Turkington.

On Sunday, the customary banquet following initiation was served with Elmer W. Hills of the College of Commerce as the principal speaker. Following Head Master Young's welcoming speech, Paul Lilly, Head Master of Theta Chapter, gave a short talk, imparting to the new men the principles of Delta Sigma Pi.

The annual Duce party, a formal dance given by Epsilon in conjunction with the local chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi, held the spotlight on March 13. Everyone put aside their superstitions of Friday the Thirteenth, turning out in force for the affair, and pronounced it a huge success.

In June Epsilon will lose twelve men through graduation and while we shall certainly miss them next year, they carry the best wishes of the entire chapter with them. Four of the men have already obtained positions and the remaining ones will undoubtedly have positions awaiting them upon their graduation.

We take pride in reporting the election of Kenneth Fellows to Beta Gamma Sigma. Brother Fellows was also elected to Chi Phi Pi along with Howard L. Young. Chi Phi Pi is a local honorary society for both men and women at Iowa, election to which is based on extra-curricular activities, scholarship, and personality. Students are chosen through the votes of the professors of the College of Commerce. Brother Fellows was elected president of the organization by virtue of his receiving the largest number of votes from the faculty.

On Monday, March 30, officers for the 1931-32 semester were elected and will take office on the third Monday in May. The new officers are:

Head Master . . . Don W. Jenks
Senior Warden . . Paul Campbell
Junior Warden Blaine De Yarman
Treasurer . . . Robert A. Olson
Senior Guide . . Chester M. Hayes
Junior Guide J. Edmond Andersen
Scribe . . . John J. Van Lent
Chancellor . . Max Cadwallader
Historian . . . Robert E. Spriggs
Rushing Captain Harold W. Puls

Epsilon closed its social season with its best party of the year on Friday, May 1. The party was the annual spring formal dinner dance, held at Red Ball Inn. Rose-tinted lights and red roses on the tables were the decorating motif and formed a beautiful setting for the fifty-five couples who attended. Chuck Garber's Commodore Club orchestra furnished the best of music for this occasion.

Duane Hodgekins seems to have the freshman golf championship well in hand, having won the qualifying round with a 79 against a strong field, besting his nearest rival by five strokes. There seems to be little doubt at this time that Hodgekins will hold down a berth on the varsity team next year.

While we are losing a number of men this June, the last group of thirteen pledges will give Epsilon a practically full house to start

University Hall—University of Iowa

with next year so we look forward to an ever-growing and ever-better chapter.

WELL, SPRING is here. Although at this time of the year each young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love, brothers of Chi, in their more conscious moments—when not totally overcome by fits of balminess—are actively at work preparing for our annual dinner dance. The L'Hirondelle Country Club, at Ruxton, where we held our dinner dance last year, has again been secured. The situation of the club and its conveniences are ideal. Both actives and alumni are looking forward to another delicious dinner followed by several hours of dancing within the delightful environment. Every effort is being made to insure this much-anticipated affair of being the greatest convention of brothers and their friends in the entire history of the chapter. We expect a record number to attend, and hope that a goodly crowd of those residing out of town may find the opportunity to be with us again and renew once more the close relationships that so many of us fondly remember. The date for this final social event of the scholastic year, which at this time is only tentative, is Friday, May 22. The Delta Sigma Pi Scholarship Key will be presented at this time to the student selected as most outstanding in work at the university.

Another event for which Chi is preparing is our annual election of officers to be held on Thursday, April 23. A nominating committee, of which Merrill Russell is the chairman, has drawn up and submitted a list of nominees, some of which, when this issue of THE DELTASIG is published, will be the officers upon whose shoulders will rest the destiny of the chapter for the coming year.

Chi will hold a stunt night on Thursday, May 14, at our last meeting of the year to be held at the university. We expect an abundance of fun when some of our brothers take their talents from under the bushel, so to speak, and place them upon a pedestal, that friends may behold and marvel. The entertainment will be under the direction of T. Donnell Schildwachter, who can be relied upon to furnish an interesting program. Music will be supplied by our five promising musicians. We hope we are safe in calling it music; at any rate, we're sure of plenty of noise.

On Saturday, March 7, Chi held a joint initiation and banquet with Mu Chapter at the beautiful Mayflower Hotel, at Washington, D. C. Thirty-seven men, including 22 actives, 4 neophytes, 10 alumni, and Mr. Stegman, our new faculty adviser, filled the bus chartered for the occasion to capacity. The formal initiation and ritual was given by members of both chapters. This was followed by a splendid banquet at which almost 70 persons were present. Earl Nash, president of the Washington Alumni Club, presided and served in the capacity of toastmaster. Those who spoke were Dr. Thomas Healy, assistant dean of the School of Foreign Service, Georgetown University; Dr. Baker, our faculty adviser; E. L. Schujahn, Grand President; Eugene Milener, member of the Board of Directors; V. M. Hoffman, District Deputy for Mu; Dr. Coutinho; and William Kindsfather and Walter Baggs, Head Masters.

Our annual spring dance was held on Friday, April 10, at the Maryland Country Club, and like all of our social events this year was well attended and turned out to be another distinctive success. Quite a number of alumni members were present with their sweethearts and friends.

The chapter is still holding weekly luncheons regularly each Thursday between the hours of twelve and one, at the Lord Baltimore Hotel. Attendance has been very good throughout the year. At the present time there is quite a bit of rivalry between actives and alumni as to which has the greater attendance each week. We extend a cordial invitation to any brother who may have occasion to stop off in Baltimore to dine with us.

As this old scholastic year is drawing to its close, Chi wishes to embrace this last opportunity to extend to all brothers throughout the country a warm farewell until we return to school again next fall and unite once more to work fraternally toward a still greater Delta Sigma Pi.

KANSAS

IOTA CHAPTER gave its annual spring formal Friday, April 17. The house was decorated in Deltasig colors, purple and gold. Clusters of flowers and colored floodlights brought spring into full essence. Thirty couples danced to the entrancing tunes of Jack Warfield's colored orchestra.

In a close running and highly competitive election for School of Business officers, Fred Lewis and Alvin Barnes were elected into the offices of president and vice-president for the ensuing year. Another honor bestowed on the chapter was the placing of Donald Bollard on the School of Business honor roll.

Activity has been lax the past month. Important events that will stimulate activity are the Kansas relays and the annual school election in which a political upset took place, the Oread Kayhawk taking the political lines from the Pachacamac party which has been in reign for the past nineteen years. Barton Avery is a retiring council member this year.

Several Deltasigs formed a part of the winning senior baseball team, which defeated the faculty. The games formed a part of the entertainment for the annual School of Business Day which was held on April 15.

The opening of spring weather has brought intramural athletics back in force. Two games of baseball have been played by Iota Chapter. Horseshoe and tennis will be in line in the near future.

KENTUCKY

By F. Eugene Wilson

IT IS WITH PRIDE that Eta announces the visit of H. G. Wright, Grand Secretary-Treasurer, to our chapter. A luncheon was given in his honor. Many alumni were present. One charter member also wished to recall the old college days by attending. Brother Wright gave a talk on Delta Sigma Pi. We of Eta Chapter feel proud as do all Deltasigs to belong to such an outstanding professional fraternity. Brother Wright, we are looking forward to another visit to this chapter and hope it will be in the near future.

Interest in Delta Sigma Pi is becoming more pronounced every semester and it will not be long until Eta will be able to take its place as the outstanding fraternity on the campus.

Eta loses eleven brothers through graduation in May. They have been outstanding men on the campus and we feel sure they will go far in the business world.

Austin H. Gresham, former Head Master and representative to the national convention held in Detroit in 1930, is the winner of the Beta Gamma Sigma key. He was also a member of the staff of the Kentucky Yearbook in 1930.

Rex Allison is indeed the one who has achieved all honors on the campus. He is editor of the Kentuckian, president of Strollers, student dramatic club, president of Men's Student Council, member of Scabbard and Blade, and member of Omicron Delta Kappa. He is also a lieutenant colonel of the R. O. T. C.

The School of Commerce and Finance Building, University of Detroit

Ralph G. Woodall is another outstanding senior, being a Scabbard and Blade, member of Lances, junior class honor fraternity, member of Keys, sophomore class honorary fraternity. He is a first lieutenant of the R. O. T. C.

To offset this loss we have pledged twelve outstanding students and hope they can take the place of our graduating brothers. Initiation will be held May 2, 1931, followed by a dinner dance.

LOUISIANA STATE

By J. P. Jewell, Jr.

ON APRIL 9

Beta Zeta pledged nine outstanding students and one faculty member of the College of Commerce: Dr. Earl A. Saliers, Lauris E. Welch, Richard R. Brown, Leon J. Reymond, Carl M. Pierce, Didier D. Touns, George J. Zachariah, Lawrence P. Theriot, Joe A. Langridge, and Samuel E. Charlton. Dr. Saliers is professor of Accounting at L.S.U. Besides being the author of several accounting texts, he is editor of the Accountant's Handbook. Before coming to Louisiana State in 1928, Dr. Saliers served in the capacity of professor of Accounting at Yale and later as professor of Accounting at Northwestern. We of Beta Zeta feel proud in having pledged this prominent author and accountant.

Formal initiation took place on the afternoon of April 18. On the evening of the same day our annual banquet was given at Louie's Inn, followed by a dance in Garig Hall. These events were among the most successful in the history of our chapter.

When the call to studies is sounded next September, Beta Zeta will find missing among its membership Kearney A. Robichaux, C. Floyd Clark and Champ J. Breden, who will graduate this June. We can hardly begin to measure the vast quantity of contributions that these men have made toward the welfare of Delta Sigma Pi. There is no doubt as to their eligibility to places on Beta Zeta's "worthy of mention" list.

Another great loss in store for Beta Zeta is that of our distinguished charter member, Dr. Joseph Mayton, who has recently resigned as professor of Economic Resources and Foreign Trade, his resignation to take effect at the end of the current school year. Before going into active business in San Diego, California, Brother Mayton will fulfill previously made engagements to teach at the California State College at San Diego and to deliver a series of lectures under an arrangement between the State College and the extension division of the University of California. Brother Mayton has accomplished much for the advancement of Beta Zeta and of the fraternity as a whole and it is with much sorrow that we see him leave. In California Brother Mayton will not be without old acquaintances, for in this state he has spent much of his life. It was at the University of California that he obtained his B.A. and M.A. degrees. Although we are satisfied that he is returning home, we cannot help but feel that Beta Zeta has suffered an irreparable loss.

Sometime in May officers for next year will be elected and a program of professional and social activities will be outlined.

About 27 Deltasigs will return to L.S.U. for the 1931-1932 session. With such an enterprising group Beta Zeta is confident that her program for the coming year is to be one of great achievements.

MARQUETTE

"IN SPRING a young man's fancy—" but not so at Delta Chapter. In the midst of spring formals, farewells, exams and graduation and, yes, an occasional round or two of golf, the local chapter is adding the finishing touches to another very successful year—a year in which good fortune has been kind to Delta.

Graduation will cut deeply into our ranks. The business world is soon to receive Brothers Bohling, Carlson, Hanson, Heidgen, Honkamp, Kampschulte, Kassner, Schlise, and Schumacher. Proud indeed are we of our contribution! Men such as these men, some of whom are members of Beta Gamma Sigma and Alpha Sigma Tau; men who have been class presidents, Senior Union board members, all-university chairmen, Commerece Club presidents, Head Masters, Golden Key holders, and athletic stars, are not easily replaced.

But in spite of our loss we are proud to introduce to you our nine new brothers:

Delta Chapter—Marquette University

SECOND ROW: Walter Schlise, Thomas Sheedy, Everett Moen, Wesley Heidemann, William Monroe, Elmer Kampfschulte, Harry Schmidt.

William Murphy, Tom Heipp, Gregory Shulte, Jerome Hoolihan, Robert Retzer, John Doyme, Alex Mayer, Walter July, and James Fenlon. Informal initiation took place at the chapter house, Saturday, March 21, and was followed by formal initiation Sunday with a banquet at the Plankinton Hotel. Appropriate talks were given by Brother Atkinson, former dean of the College of Business Administration; Brother Witmeyer, alumnus; Head Master Keller; past Head Master Kassner, and Brother Murphy, representing the young brothers.

Brother Hester, alumni representative, and Brothers Hansen, Kominarek, and Roemer, were delegated as a nominating committee for the annual election of officers. The following officers were nominated and elected:

Head Master	Arthur Keller
Senior Warden	Cecil Molseed
Junior Warden	John Baker
Scribe	William Bergstrom
Treasurer	Eugene Roemer
Chancellor	Donald Kalitowski
Senior Guide	Marvin Kominarek
Master of Festivities	William Monroe
Master of Ceremonies	Ralph Krueger
Junior Guide	Edward Lawler
Historian	Alfred Rasor

Good fortune has always blessed Delta with exceptionally able Head Masters and this year is no exception, for we have as our newly elected Head Master, Arthur C. Keller. Art is a Junior, a member of the Union Board, member of Alpha Sigma Tau, highest honorary fraternity at Marquette, past DELTASIG Correspondent and what's more, a real fellow. The chapter congratulates retiring Head Master Kassner for his excellent leadership during the past year.

The first spring smoker was held at the chapter house, April 13. Ma Smith, whose culinary art has brought plenty of sunshine to the house, again was responsible for many watering mouths—strawberry shortcake! Delta was royally entertained at the chapter house of Alpha Kappa Psi Wednesday evening, April 15.

May 9 is the date set for the eleventh annual Founders' Day banquet which is to be held in the Sky Room of Hotel Plankinton. Music will be furnished by the Delta Drippers, a five-piece orchestra, including tap dancers and soloists, consisting entirely of members of our last class. The orchestra is the latest sensation around the campus and is soon to be broadcast over WHAD, Marquette U. station.

The spring formal is fast taking form under the guidance of Brothers Monroe, Molseed, and Krueger. May 23 is the date for A Night at Monte Carlo.

With the exception of baseball and track, March terminated interfraternity sports. Brother Honkamp's basketball team enjoyed a successful court season, losing but two games. Brother Schmidt has been receiving wide recognition in the mid-west track meets this spring, running the mile and running as a member of M. U. crack medley team in the four mile relay. Brother Rasor represented Delta at the annual University Boxing Show and after seeing Al perform, the boys have nothing to fear with the Northern Marauder as a protector.

Another coveted honor in this year's social program is held by a Delta man—Brother Kominarek has been recently elected chairman of Business Administration banquet to be held the last of April.

MERCER

By George W. Potts

WHEN THE END of the spring term comes, Alpha Tau Chapter will have closed its fourth year as a member of Delta Sigma Pi. Since Alpha Tau Chapter was installed much work and progress has been accomplished in the business world and commercial field.

Eight active members are now taking part, but this small number are carrying the work of a large number so the Alpha Tau boys can't be counted so small after all. Several new pledges have been added to the list and we are certain of a larger chapter next year.

Among the most interesting events since the last issue of THE DELTASIG was the visit paid us by Brother Wright, our Grand Secretary from Chicago. Brother Wright came to Macon on Sunday, March 22, and spent the day and night with the boys. While here the Alpha Tau boys and alumni gave a banquet in his honor and he responded with a very enjoyable talk.

We also had our annual smoker, which has become the biggest event of the year for the Commerce students as well as Delta Sigma Pi members. We held the smoker on April 9, in the college library and it was attended by almost a perfect 100 per cent of the commerce students. Many interesting speeches were made during the evening. Mr. Lincoln McConnell, president of the Macon Chamber of Commerce, was the principal speaker of the evening. He spoke for thirty minutes on "Business Men of the World Today," and gave the boys something to remember when out fighting the battle of life and success.

Ashton Almond, our retiring Head Master, also made a nice talk on the chapter's future plans. Other speakers were Dr. Spright Dowell, president of Mercer, and Dean C. B. Wray of the Commerce department. Plenty of smokes were served between the speeches; at the close of the evening the boys opened up a "Cag of Nails" and found several gallons of punch and sandwiches.

The chapter is now trying to install a placement bureau for the commerce graduates, and by this time next year hopes to have it working with clock-work regularity.

We wish also to call attention to the fact that Cooper Salter, who was with us last term, has left school and taken unto himself a wife who also was a student at Mercer. They were both from Savannah and are making that their home at present. The Alpha Tau brothers and alumni send them their best wishes for a happy life.

Before the end of the term the chapter will have two parties, one at Dean Wray's and the other at Professor L. K. Johnson's home. Both of these men are faculty advisers for the chapter.

Graduation exercises are scheduled for June 1, and Alpha Tau has five of its active members who will walk down Graduation Avenue to receive their rewards for the work they have put out during the past years. The men leaving are Ashton Almond, Houser Gilbert, Joe Patrick, Thomas McKoy, and George W. Potts. Good luck to the boys for they will need it. We wish everyone a big summer and as the writer is writing his last piece for THE DELTASIG, I will be watching with interest the progress of Delta Sigma Pi.

ALPHA UPSILON announces the initiation of 15 men on Saturday, April 11. The initiation banquet, which was postponed on account of other university activities, was held on Friday, April 17, at The Scott Manor.

At the regular Tuesday luncheon, Alpha Upsilon elected officers for the coming year. They are as follows: Robert Wiseman, Head Master; Hughes Williamson, Treasurer; Wilson Van Landingham, Scribe; Howard Higgins, Senior Warden; Earle Lokey, Junior Warden; and Dr. Edwin Todd, Adviser.

Dr. Edwin Todd, chapter adviser and professor of Economics, has been granted a leave of absence by the university. Dr. Todd will spend next year in Europe lecturing and writing on American Taxation.

Dr. Charles Sandage, Kansas, has just completed a statistical research of the buying power of the Miami University students. This analysis disclosed several facts that were of interest to the professors, students, and business men.

Five of the twelve men elected to Blue Key this year are Deltasigs. They are Harry Yanney, Hughes Williamson, Earle Lokey, Wellmon Hardesty, and Howard Higgins.

Joseph Seibert, social chairman, was elected president of the Y. M. C. A. for next year. Brother Seibert was also elected senior football manager.

John McCann is senior baseball manager. Verne Stanford is junior track manager.

Wilson Van Landingham and Harry Yanney are on the varsity baseball squad. Van Landingham is the regular catcher. Yanney is an outfielder.

Alvin Stark, James Strock, and Howard Higgins are on the varsity track squad. Brother Stark won the broad jump last year and is expected to come through again this year.

Howard Brenneman, winner of the Scholarship Key last year and who is employed by The General Electric Company, visited the Miami campus the week before spring vacation.

Harry Gerlach, an alumnus who is in the Mount Vernon Hospital, is reported as doing nicely.

MARCH 28

marked the date of Xi's last initiation. A banquet was held at six o'clock. Professor Robert A. Campbell gave an interesting address, his subject being "Benefits from Fraternal Ties." Xi having put on one of its most successful hell weeks in years wishes to congratulate those neophytes who came through successfully and takes this opportunity to introduce those new men to you: Robert D. Andrews, Muskegon, Michigan; Charles H. Claypoole Jr., Woodward, Alabama; Malcolm W. Hughes, North Muskegon, Michigan and Theodore Kildegaard, Greenville, Michigan.

Our Michigan Chapter House

Xi held its final election of the year on March 9. Many of the former officers being seniors, this election vested much of Xi's authority in the hands of the younger members of the chapter. Meet the new men:

- Head Master* Ronald W. Todgham
- Senior Warden* . Edward D. Muir
- Junior Warden* Charles D. Williams
- Treasurer* . . . Lloyd C. Raymond
- Scribe* . . . . . Clyde L. Reed
- Steward, House Manager*
Whitney R. Dixon
- Historian* . . . . . Emil H. Steva
- Senior Guide* . Robert E. Adams
- Junior Guide* D. Glenn Christian
- Master of Ceremonies*
Louis E. McCrath
- Social Chairman* Wayne C. Toland

Everything working smoothly; there is little doubt but that Xi will have one of the most successful administrations yet experienced.

The Business Administration smoker for senior and junior students was held in the Michigan Union, April 9. Along with the discussion of many business topics a program was enjoyed, consisting of musical numbers and entertainment by a magician. Xi was present in large numbers and it is hoped that all the business students on campus will continue to take advantage of this opportunity of becoming better acquainted with campus leaders and men who are interested in the business profession.

At the last election officers were chosen for the Pledge Standards Committee. The following men became members of this body: Gordon Heim, senior representative; Bob Andrews, junior representative; and David Lansborough, sophomore representative. Head Master Ron Todgham and Junior Warden Chuc Williams automatically became members of this body. The Pledge Standards Committee is a new plan of pledge government being tried by Michigan for the first time this year. So far its work has been very effective, and the present group is making plans for the future. With eleven seniors graduating in June it is necessary that Xi have many good men to step in their places. Prospective men are being brought up and Xi's future appears very bright.

Spring sports are on, and Xi has been turning its attention toward baseball, horse shoe and tennis. We're still going strong for the professional cup, ranking first on campus, and we're hoping to have it in with the collection on the mantel when we come back next fall to resume work.

WHAT ALPHA BETA

termed the biggest affair of the present school year was the dance it had on March 21. It was very well attended, and we had several of the old grads back with us that night.

We are preparing for our big Commerce Day program, that will feature several fine speeches, a banquet, and the Derby Dance. This is an all-school event, and will be held Monday, April 13. Rufus Smith, president of the School of Business and Public Administration, will make an after-dinner speech on "Commerce Day and the Student."

Alpha Beta initiated six new men into the chapter last March 22. The newly initiated men are Brothers Pender, Thomas, Covington, Ream, Martin, and Scott. Five of our new brothers are juniors in the School of Business, and we are placing a great trust in them to carry on the work and ideals of Alpha Beta.

Due to the efforts of Charles Wood, our athletic director, we have teams entered in practically all the intramural games, and with the fine material we have in the chapter, we should make a creditable showing in all the games.

Bernard Feldecamp, who lettered last year at third base on the varsity nine, seems sure to repeat this year although he has some stiff competition. Alonzo Penniston was re-appointed lieutenant-colonel in the Missouri unit of the R. O. T. C. for the second semester, also Brother Penniston and Hugh Powell rank within the first five on the varsity rifle team.

The School of Business is having its annual election of officers along with the other schools in the University of Missouri in the near future and three Deltasigs seem sure of election to offices in the School.

The members of Alpha Beta extend the heartiest greetings to the other chapters and we wish to remind you that we have open house for any brother that happens down this way.

NEBRASKA

By Elmer E. Lind

THINGS HAVE been progressing very nicely on the Alpha Delta horizon since the last issue of THE DELTASIG. In spite of the severity of the mid-semester examinations both workers and pledges succeeded in maintaining a high scholastic and fraternal standing.

On the evening of March 10 Alpha Delta met with the members of Alpha Kappa Psi in a joint meeting at the Lincoln Hotel. After enjoying a most delightful dinner the evening was devoted to a round-table discussion on the present and proposed activities within our College of Business Administration. At the present time a joint program is being discussed between the two professional fraternities of our college, on the assumption that greater benefits will be derived as a result of the combined efforts of the two organizations. Several joint committees have been appointed for the purpose of investigating the various proposals that have been made and to determine the practicability of such a program. The primary motive of such cooperative efforts would be that of serving as a stimulus for the creation of even greater interest in commercial problems, on the part of all the Business Administration students.

Several very interesting smokers have been held during this period. At the present time we are in the midst of an extensive program of rushing, in order to bring the active chapter up to a number that will not be seriously affected by graduation. Our chapter has several members who are to graduate this coming spring and as a result a number of vacancies will be left that must be filled in order to successfully carry on the program of work that will eventually develop for Alpha Delta in the future. Aside from the primary purpose of securing new pledges these smokers are devoted to social discussions on various current topics of interest on the campus, upon the value of the professional fraternity, as well as its relation to the present industrial problems of the business world. These group discussions often bring out a number of very interesting facts concerning the present and proposed activities of the various members.

NEW YORK

By William J. Riley

AS THE SCHOOL year draws to a close, Alpha Chapter pauses for a moment to look back with pride upon its accomplishments. Under the splendid leadership of Head Master Kilian, 1930-31 has been one of the best years that Alpha has ever experienced. We say this because we have made great progress, professionally, socially, and scholastically. On the campus Delta Sigma Pi has found its way into numerous activities. It was mainly through our efforts that the Interfraternity Council was organized. True, the organization is only a few months old, but the foundation has been laid and in a few years this will be one of the strongest associations at New York University. This can clearly be seen through the progress that has already been made. The eight fraternities which comprise this council have been striving with all their might to make the organization a success.

The two most important affairs sponsored by the council were a formal dance and a basketball tournament.

Alpha's undefeated basketball team was too much for the eight others and we found ourselves the possessor of another trophy. Our team did splendid work and much credit goes to all the players and to our coach, "Sugar" Hugret. The players were: Harry Kendall, Jim Tanguay, Babe Spellmeyer,

Alpha's Championship Basketball Team

Alpha has again proven its ability as a leader in intramural basketball at New York University. Undefeated for a period of four years, and the possessors of the 1931 all-university interfraternity championship gives every evidence of such leadership.

Three-Star Hennessy, Ken Steffins, George Ferris, Chick LaForge, Ernie Vavra, Chuck Collins, and Bill Rhatigan. The team was not satisfied with one trophy so they challenged Alpha Gamma, winner of the intramural tournament, and on March 31 were crowned the champions of Washington Square. We then challenged Phi Sigma Delta, the Heights champions, for a battle. Since they did not accept our challenge we now claim the all-university championship.

Social engagements have kept the boys busy to the following tune. The Saint Patrick's dance held at the chapter house was handled by Dick Abbe, who once more showed his ability to plan and carry out a splendid evening of entertainment. Credit must be also extended to Dick's committee of George Taylor and Ken Steffins—the combination Dutch-Irish committee. Next on our program was a smoker which was without a doubt the most enjoyable one held by Alpha this year. Having planned a program of national interest we took this opportunity to entertain Theta Chi. Jack Bursey, a member of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition, was guest speaker. Jack told us in a very interesting manner of his experiences in the Antarctic.

George Hennessy was chairman of our last house party. This was George's first shot at running a dance but one never would have known it, because he handled everything so completely. The old gold and royal purple canopy above the orchestra in combination with a colorful Japanese lighting effect were particularly pleasing.

The Violet Skull formal reception was held Friday night, April 17, in the Persian Garden Suite at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel. One of Alpha's own, Harry Kendall, was chairman of this dance and to him goes much of the credit for its success. It was one of the most outstanding affairs ever undertaken by an organization at New York University. There were 160 couples present. The night after this dance the annual Round Robin dance was held. The eight fraternity members of the interfraternity council held open house and everybody had a nifty time making the rounds—from house to house.

Our social calendar will close on Friday evening, May 15, when our Spring dance will be held at Swiss Chalet Country Club, Rochelle Park, New Jersey. Frank Eife, the chairman of this dance, is working hard getting his elaborate plans in shape. He promises a great affair—so on May 15 Alpha will slip away from the big city, cross the majestic Hudson, and spend an enjoyable evening in the land of "Apple Jack"—what a break for Jersey!

Now that summer is here many Deltasigs turn their thoughts to travel. There is plenty to see in New York, fellows, so, of course, this is one city you are going to visit. Alpha welcomes you and we want you to make 26 West 11th Street your headquarters. We are expecting you—don't disappoint us.

This year's staff of officers have functioned very effectively and have devoted much time and effort in keeping the Mother Chapter in a rightful position in fraternal and school affairs. On April 27th the following officers were elected for the coming year and we feel that they will earnestly strive to surpass the good work of their predecessors:

Head Master . Harold J. Cahill
Senior Warden . Frank W. Eife
Junior Warden Harry E. Kendall
Scribe . . . William J. Riley
Treasurer . . . George Meakin
Chancellor . . Richard F. Abbe
Historian . George H. Hennessy
Senior Guide . Ernest W. Vavra
Junior Guide

Kenneth H. C. Steffens

In conclusion Alpha wishes to extend to all Deltasigs far and wide the best of good wishes during the vacation season.

NORTH CAROLINA

By Benjamin Kendrick

THE JOINT BANQUET of Alpha Lambda and Beta Delta Chapters was held on March 13, at the Carolina Inn in Chapel Hill. Dr. Charles B. Elwood of Duke University, and a member of the Missouri Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi, was the speaker. Speaking on the general topic of "The Business Man and Social Problems," Dr. Elwood made the point that in view of the institutional setup of our economic organization, the business man was in a focal point pertaining to the development and establishment of ethical standards. Further, in developing in the business man higher ideals regarding ethics, the professional commerce fraternity occupies a position whose importance is unattained by any other group. The banquet was a great success not only because of the excellence of the speech but also because of the splendid opportunity provided for the members of the two chapters to become better acquainted.

Since that time Alpha Lambda has held its first smoker of the spring quarter, at which Francis F. Bradshaw, dean of men at North Carolina, was the speaker. It was attended by an unusually large number of members and guests to whom refreshments were served at the conclusion of the talk. Dean Bradshaw spoke on the topic, "Business and Ethics," pointing out that all entering an active life must either lower the standards of society, allow them to remain as they are, or raise them, and that although the latter course may not be the most profitable financially, it certainly is the happiest.

In the winter quarter Alpha Lambda was very successful scholastically, six members making the honor roll, and the general average being in the upper bracket.

North Carolina State

By Fred C. Herbst

THE CLOSE of this college year finds Beta Delta Chapter with a large group of excellent underclassmen who will return to school next year and form the nucleus for another good year of Delta Sigma Pi activity at North Carolina State College. With them will be several men who will be initiated before the close of this term.

Beta Delta has had several interesting open meetings this year which were well attended by students of the School of Science and Business. Among the speakers were: H. K. Carpenter, manager director of radio station WPTF, who gave quite an interesting talk on radio advertising and its application to modern marketing methods; Prof. M. C. Leager of State College, who told the chapter some of the applications of statistics in North Carolina's tax policy; Mr. Marvin Shirley, manager of the Charlotte branch of the U. S. Department of Commerce, who before an audience of more than a hundred students of the School of Science and Business, gave an intensely interesting description of the workings of the Department of Commerce in helping American business men in both foreign and domestic trade.

Beta Delta Chapter recently had a joint meeting and banquet with Alpha Lambda Chapter of the University of North Carolina, where Dr. Elwood of Duke University was the principal speaker, making a very delightful talk on the social responsibilities of professional fraternities. We all had a very good banquet with excellent food and very few speeches. After the banquet an enjoyable evening was had at the Alpha Lambda house where several of the members of both chapters were initiated into the glorious order of "Yellow Dogs" much to a certain professor's enjoyment.

Beta Delta closes this college year with the feeling of having gone through a very successful year from every standpoint, and feeling that it has done much to influence favorable comment from the students of the college toward the School of Science and Business.

been moving fast along the Alpha Mu line. Election of new members has taken place; a sport party is planned for the near future; the brothers have been winning scholarship honors as well as taking a big part in activities.

The officers for the coming year are:

Head Master . Albert W. Wisner
Senior Warden . Hal J. Crawford
Junior Warden

Frank T. Nicklawsky
Scribe . . . . Roy A. Holand

The ship of Alpha Mu is sure to move forward under the guidance of Brother Wisner and the other officers.

Elections to Beta Gamma Sigma for the entire School of Commerce were composed entirely of the brothers. Those elected to Beta Gamma Sigma were: Carl Locken, Frank Nicklawsky, and Albert Wisner.

Each year there is given a prize for the senior in Commerce who makes the best record in scholarship and activities. This honor, the Bye Memorial prize, continues to be won by Deltasigs. This year Walter Thomas is thus honored.

Activities recently acquired include the selection of Hal Crawford as business manager of the Dakota Student and the election of Roy Holand as president of the newly organized Commerce Club. Several of our men were given promotions in the R.O.T.C.

John Hancock, prominent New York banker, is to join the honorary ranks of Delta Sigma Pi. Mr. Hancock graduated from the university before there was a School of Commerce here or a chapter of Delta Sigma Pi.

WE HATE TO

brag but—only the finest of dances can be made long! And this one was from nine till two-thirty o'clock. What and where? The annual City-of-Chicago Chapters Deltasig spring formal supper dance, staged Saturday, April 18 by Beta, Zeta, Alpha Psi, and Alpha Omega Chapters of Delta Sigma Pi in the main dining room of the Stevens Hotel (greatest hotel in the world [adv.]).

All four Chicago chapters of the fraternity contributed wholeheartedly to the sparkling success of the formal. The total attendance was 132 couples—32 more couples than the committee had anticipated. Fifty-four were from Beta.

Gig Wright was unfortunately one of the few prominent Beta men who didn't show up for the glorious annual shindig. Gig, however, has to be a stay-at-home these days, as his little Deltasig, Robert Donald, was the birth of the month in March. They say, too, that it's for the same reason that Ed Bork, Warren Raymond and Herman Kraft missed the formal; they may or may not have been "sweet daddies" once, but they're proud papas now!

A feature of the evening's entertainment was the personal appearance of John H. Crysler, popular song writer of Beta Chapter, who sang his latest hit, a beautiful waltz, "I Dreamed a Dream of You."

And by the way, as we pass the subject of the formal, may we ask you a question? Who but a group of Deltasigs could pick themselves out so great a majority of rapturously beautiful women?

At our business meeting Monday, March 30, 1931, we elected the following officers for the 1931-32 school year:

Head Master . Charlton G. Shaw
Senior Warden

Robert J. Blackinton

Junior Warden Harold E. Terwell
Treasurer . . . Howard W. Ryan

The week of March 30 to April 4 was momentous in the lives of five whom we now call brothers. For then was hell week, and upon the fourth day of April did we initiate the following men: John H. Crysler, Frank T. Herbert, Edward H. Hagen, Paul E. Kamschulte, and Walter T. Draeger. Following the initiation and banquet at which Grand Secretary-Treasurer H. G. Wright was the guest of honor, a theatre party of brothers and their femmes attended a mystery drama, "The Ninth Guest."

Sunday, April 5, we were hosts to the senior class of the School of Commerce of Northwestern University. Our "Prexy," Brother Walter Dill Scott, addressed the seniors in his spicy way, telling them of their privileges as graduates and suggesting their duties to our alma mater. Three Beta men are in this graduating class, Charlton Shaw, Walter Eisenhauer, and Earl Koehler.

Monday, April 6, Dr. Hulbert, an eminent alienist, spoke at our fortnightly smoker and gave us the inside dope on insanity amongst criminals. His talk was a sequel to the one given two weeks earlier on ballistics and crime detection by Capt. Seth Willard of the Chicago Crime Detection Institute, a division of Northwestern University.

Saturday, April 25, marked the closing of the season for our school formals. The event was the annual spring formal of the Commerce Club, held in the Crystal Room of the Edgewater Beach Hotel, under the direction of Randolph K. Vinson, and attended by over 500 people. Over 40 undergraduates of Beta Chapter enjoyed the dance, all wearing in their lapels the traditional red rose of the fraternity.

Remember our address—42 Cedar Street, Chicago.

AS ALPHA OMICRON once more closes its portals, we are overjoyed to look beyond its walls over one of the most successful years we have ever experienced.

Under the most efficient and capable leadership of past Head Master Delbert Matthews, our chapter has not only gained renown at Ohio University, but has built a chapter of great strength and unity.

On April 13 there was an election of new officers, who in the future will guide Alpha Omicron Chapter's ship of progress, and shoulder the responsibilities for the coming year. The new officers-elect are:

Head Master . . . Allan E. Bundy
Senior Warden . . Herbert Davis
Junior Warden . . . John Main
Scribe . . . . . Robert Whittier
Treasurer . . . . Elden Hauck
Historian . . . . Robert Fisher

With a fine selection of officers such as these men and a little earnest co-operation, Alpha Omicron is going to do splendid work; not only at Ohio University but at the chapter house.

And then the initiation. We put through a class of ten men, who, in spite of how trite it may seem to say it, are just about the best bunch of fellows one can imagine. They are: Norman Boltz, Robert Fisher, John Main, Edward Radford, Stephen Ragley, Albert Heitnen, John Shafer, David Waid, Wilson Schoneberger, and Robert Whittier. And lastly, the banquet. It was practically perfect. Several of the faculty members and alumni who have attended many of them, said it was the best they had ever experienced.

Graduation carries with it no mean threat of thinning out our ranks for seven brothers are planning to don the cap and gown to step out into the great unknown. Brothers Matthew, Mihalko, Harless, Krinn, and Miller anticipate entering the accounting field, while Brother Stott prefers his banking and Brother Ewing his advertising.

Socially the year has been a big one. Several house dances were held with varying success but always a good time. As a climax a grand and glorious formal was held at the Men's Union in January. In order to close our season with a bang, Alpha Omicron has made elaborate preparations for its spring dance to be held May 9.

The biggest event of the semester was the visit of Grand Secretary-Treasurer H. G. Wright on March 27 and 28. While with us, Gig was also a guest at the Interfraternity Council which was holding its convention in Athens. The entire chapter and several alumni honored their Grand Secretary-Treasurer by giving a banquet in his honor at the chapter house. Brother Wright gave a most interesting talk concerning the strength, magnitude and future of Delta Sigma Pi.

Our chapter is well represented in intramural sports, and has shown considerable interest in this phase of activity. We have entered teams in basketball, handball, wrestling, and volleyball. Alpha Omicron again steps to the front in the Class A Volleyball League, with a slate of eight consecutive wins and no losses, a record very creditable on Ohio U's campus.

With the baseball season at our door, Alpha Omicron again takes pleasure in undertaking the managerial side of the sport. Floyd Stott has the post of senior manager and is due to earn his varsity "O." Elden Hauck, under whose leadership the junior prom was made the greatest success of the year, is junior manager.

University of Georgia, School of Commerce Building

It is with pride and pleasant memories that we look back upon this year but next year we hope to be even better. Several very good men graduate but the new men will soon learn the work of the fraternity and will be able to carry it on as well as it has been done in the past.

Alpha Omicron wishes everyone a very pleasant vacation.

HAVING SUCCESSFULLY weathered the winter quarter—our shortest and hardest of the year—Nu Chapter is now looking forward to a still more eventful quarter this spring.

On Monday, March 9, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Head Master	. . . .	Ralph Cain
Senior Warden	. . . .	George Kuipers
Junior Warden	. . . .	Gilbert Kelling
Steward	. . . .	Robert Kelly
Treasurer	. . . .	Edward Sommer
Scribe	. . . .	Raymond Barrett
Master of Festivities		Eugene Muma
Master of Ceremonies		Russell K'Burg
Historian	. . . .	Clarence Jackson

We are certain that with such men at the helm Nu Chapter will go far this next year.

Plans are under way to initiate six good men the week-end of May 9. Each succeeding hell week seems to be bigger and better and we know that this will be no exception.

May 2 has been set as the date for our annual spring party and we cordially invite any Deltasig who can be present to drop in on us at that date and enjoy some of Nu's hospitality.

As for our past events, the winter formal—Nu's biggest event of the year—was conducted in a manner that speaks wonders for those in charge. The site was the new Brookside Country Club, an ideal setting for such an affair. May we have many more as good as this last one.

Saturday, April 11, the chapter house furnished the setting for a very successful house dance which was well attended by our members and alumni.

With approximately 22 actives planning to return next fall, prospects look fine for another successful year in our new surroundings.

SPRING FEVER

has arrived and it is with effort that your Correspondent gathers his wits to tell of the events of the past few months. The largest social event of the past several weeks was the smoker held on February 28. About seventy turned out for the event and a good program was presented. The entertainment consisted of three boxing bouts staged under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Lyceum Club, tap dancing and singing by two colored boys, and last but not least, the showing of the movies of the national convention at Detroit. The pictures were shown through the courtesy of the Bell Telephone Co. of Pa. who also presented a talkie, "How the Movie Got Its Voice."

The fall rushing season has come to a close and seven neophytes are now busily studying for their pledge examination. These men will be initiated on May 1. The following night there will be a stag banquet for the new men at the Fort Pitt Hotel.

A new activity has been started this term, namely, a luncheon club which has been meeting at the dining room of McCreery's Department store. This club has been started as a part of our professional program and leading business men in their particular fields have been addressing the members at each meeting.

At a fraternity meeting held April 3, the election of officers was held for the first term of next year. The following men have been elected officers: Head Master, Horace Goodykoontz; Senior Warden, M. W. Glass; Junior Warden, William Workmaster; Treasurer, F. W. Huebner; Scribe, William R. Koester; Historian, William Magan. The chapter has been ably guided during the past year by the old officers. The year has brought forth many evidences of greater activity and interest on the part of its members. During the term, several new activities have been inaugurated. We have in mind particularly the revival of the Lambda Lantern, the starting of the luncheon club, and a greater willingness on the part of all brothers to contribute to the welfare of the fraternity. During the last year we have also moved into a permanent room, to which members have access at all times and which is located conveniently for everyone. Although the information can not be accurately given, it appears that we shall be able to start next term with an increased active membership of forty men.

Lambda has the best possibilities for growth under the leadership of the men who have been recently elected for the next year. All of these men have been active in the work of the fraternity in this semester. The last planned social event of the year will be a fraternity dance, sometime during the month of May or early June. The chapter appreciates the advice and guidance of Brother Distelhorst who has come to us from the University of Iowa and has been acting as faculty adviser this year. He is an instructor in Accounting at the University of Pittsburgh.

THIS SEMESTER finds Alpha Eta Chapter with a well outlined program for the next few months.

The following brothers were initiated into Delta Sigma Pi on February 22: John Groepel, Don Laurie, and Gerhard Stensaas. We feel that the initiation of these new members will greatly aid the chapter and that they will add pep to all of our undertakings.

Several pledges are to become brothers at an initiation which will be announced soon.

Election of officers was held following a banquet which was held at the Waldorf hotel on March 14. The new officers elected for the spring semester are as follows:

Head Master . . . Don Doolittle
Senior Warden Charles Richardson
Junior Warden Charles Robertson
Treasurer . . . Richard Holdorf
Scribe . . . . . Virgil Ferris

The formal dance for the chapter was held March 7, in the new Union building. Thirty-five couples attended including alumni and active members. The music was furnished by Swisher's Kampus Kings and everyone who attended reported that they hoped there would be many such good times.

All University Day will be held sometime in May and at the annual Delta Sigma Pi banquet a prominent speaker will be chosen to deliver the address. A committee to be chosen by Dean Sparks will select the speaker for the occasion.

We will lose six members through graduation this spring: Lloyd Swenson, Kenneth Zenner, Francis Fetzner, Maurice Frary, Myrle Hilton, and Wesley Carter. This will leave a number of vacancies that will have to be filled to carry on the program of work that has been outlined for Alpha Eta in the future.

AS THE SCHOOL year is rapidly coming to a close, Phi Chapter points with pride toward its accomplishments of the past year and is looking forward anxiously to the future, which has even greater prospects.

Four brothers who have served Delta Sigma Pi faithfully will be lost when the new school year begins in September. They are Steve Bryant, Maurice Cashion, Garr Gibson, and Delmont Reese. While the loss of these men will be great, Phi Chapter finds much consolation in the fact that about 22 or 23 actives will be on hand to start the ball rolling for Delta Sigma Pi.

Since the last issue of THE DELTASIG, we have initiated nine pledges into Delta Sigma Pi. The nine new members we are proud to call brothers are William Grabow, Robert Smith, Howard Maple, Donald Glenn, Robert Close, Randolph Booth, George Peale, James Gormley, and Leroy McCord. We feel sure that each of these brothers will be a credit to our fraternity.

At present our five pledges are becoming well acquainted with their pledge duties and if everything goes as per expectations, will be initiated in the near future.

On the 16th of March we had the honor of having Professor Urdahl, head of the Banking and Finance department, as our guest speaker. He spoke in a very entertaining manner on his trip around the world with the Floating University in 1926 and 1927.

Now that Phi Chapter has already won two major plaques in interfraternity basketball and volleyball this year, we are training hard in an attempt to win what remaining awards are to be given. We stand an excellent chance to cop the playground ball award, and are also devoting much attention to handball, tennis and golf. The winning of the basketball and volleyball plaques was quite an achievement in that we played many games in both sports without the loss of a single encounter.

Plans are now being made for our annual spring formal which is to be held May 2 at the Vista Del Arroyo, Pasadena. The committee under Milt Reese has been working hard on this affair which promises to be one of the largest and most successful of all social events.

Our next important fraternity event will be Alumni Night to be held on April 30 at the chapter house. There will be plenty of eats, smokes and entertainment. Brother Watkins will speak on his trip through Russia and Judge Hazlett will speak on "The Modern Application of Law."

Phi Chapter extends a cordial invitation to all Deltasigs to drop in on us at any time at 700 West 28th Street.

OMEGA IS PUTTING the final touches on its history for the past year by bringing to a close successfully a host of activities. Sailing has been good and we all feel that we are about to pull into port with new treasures in our chest.

Socially, Omega has had a very full year and a memorable one under the guidance of Jimmy Davidheiser. We have one big affair left before we drop anchor for the summer season and that is the spring dinner-dance to be held May 9, in one of the country clubs in the suburbs of Philadelphia. That affair will bring to a close the new educational pledge period that has replaced the old type of horseplay.

Deltasigs on the campus have fared well this semester and we have inherited the opportunity to do a great deal for Temple as a result. Ned Mikusinski was elected editor-in-chief of the Templar for the coming year. Hiram Marsh is to edit the student's Handbook that is published for the expressed benefit of the freshmen. Harry Groman has been elected manager of the football team after serving three seasons as an understudy for the position which is given only to seniors. Jack Wildeman has the managerial reins for the Temple basketball team during the 1931-32 season while Danny Novack is the manager of the freshman basketball squad with Ned Mikusinski as co-manager of the university squad. Jack Wildeman, Bill Black and Ned Mikusinski are all members of the Glee Club. Bill Black has been appointed editor-in-chief of the Omegasine for next year.

Jimmy Davidheiser, Jack Wildeman, Jim MacIntyre, and Bill Black are all taking part in the musical comedy, "Free for All," that is being produced by the university dramatic club, Scores and Encores. Cleon Krug, Harry Groman, and Frank Arnold are on the production staff.

Tony Dougal is up to his usual form as a first rate pitcher for the Temple baseball team.

Omega's crack basketball team copped the Inter-Fraternity Council League trophy, losing but one game out of ten.

Christian Zahnow is leaving the football field for the time being to run for the presidency of the junior class while Harry Groman is a candidate for senior representative on the Student Council.

During the course of the year we have been able to make some of the minor improvements on the house that have been needed and in time we hope to have a model home. We feel that we have attained the goals that we set for ourselves during the year although we are not yet near the ultimate goal of our dreams. Financially and socially we have been successful and we have gained headway in school activities.

The Philadelphia Alumni Club has taken a new lease on life and under the capable leadership of Ted Fechner as president, promises to provide those important and necessary features of fraternity brotherhood, namely social activity and cooperation in chapter administration. They have held several well attended meetings at the chapter house lately, and the interest and enthusiasm expressed has been very encouraging.

We bring to a close a year full of pleasant memories, valuable experiences and high hopes for the future of Omega in Delta Sigma Pi and we extend our best wishes to the rest of the Deltasigs.

Chapter can be proud of itself in more ways than one. Last quarter the chapter made a 2.97 average, a record equaled by no other fraternity on the Hill. In addition, we had four members elected to the Phi Kappa Phi honorary fraternity, namely: John F. Mitchell, Daniel M. Armstrong, J. N. Clarke, and William E. Althausen. Four of our members, Elbert S. Beamguard, John F. Mitchell, William E. Althausen, and Hubert E. Wright, made perfect averages last quarter. Also, it seems as though the  $\Delta\Sigma\Pi$  Scholarship Key will again go to one of our brothers this year. John R. Booth and Charles H. Kolhase were elected to the Scarranean Honorary Society, an honor coveted by everyone. Pete Wright is colonel of the R. O. T. C., member of the Scabbard and Blade Society, and also a member of the Pershing Rifle. This year Brothers Booth, Mitchell and Wright were elected managers of the annual Carnieus. Brother Mitchell is also a representative on the Student Council from the School of Commerce. In his freshman year, Brother Althausen was awarded the Phi Kappa Phi medal for the highest average among freshmen. He was also given the freshman and sophomore faculty scholarships and has represented the university twice at the Rhodes Scholarship meeting.

On March 1 the regular second quarter elections were held. Our new officers are:

Head Master Elbert S. Beamguard
Senior Warden Clarence W. Balton
Junior Warden John F. Mitchell
Treasurer . . . Dixie L. Conger

WITH THE APPROACHING close of the school year Beta Kappa Chapter feels that it can look back upon a very successful year. Since our installation in December we have held three smokers and three professional dinners, at which functions many lasting friendships have been formed and new men have been welcomed into our ranks. We feel that at the end of our first year we have started off well and can continue to carry on in the future.

On Tuesday night, April 14, our last professional dinner was held at the University Cafeteria. Earle E. Simms, junior member of the nationally-known firm of Paul O. Simms Real Estate company spoke to us on "Real Estate." Mr. Simms confined his discussion to purely practical topics, and as a result we all learned many new things about the real estate business.

On May 1 we held our annual initiation and banquet at the Stephen F. Austin hotel. A program carrying out the farewell nature of the affair was given and the following pledges were initiated into the bonds of Delta Sigma Pi: Seth Temple, Warner McNair, Ernest Best, Lester Elliott, and Ernest Callaway. These men are all outstanding in the School of Business Administration and

Chapter House of Our Kansas Chapter

Beta Kappa feels that it is very fortunate in having them.

We regret very much that Head Master Travis A. White will receive his degree in June. Brother White has done a great deal for Beta Kappa and has always been very active and loyal in his responsible position. Beta Kappa wishes him the very best success in all his undertakings.

Beta Kappa plans much constructive work in the future, and plans are already under way for bigger and better things next year.

REVIEWING BRIEFLY the activities of the chapter for the current year, the members of Alpha Xi feel that all in all it has been a very successful semester. The chapter started off with a series of rush smokers, and, though not as strong as might be desired at the beginning of a new session, succeeded in getting all bids accepted except one. The chapter had the pleasure of listening to a number of interesting and instructive talks given by members of the faculty and outside speakers, and enjoyed group discussions led by active members of Alpha Xi.

The activities of the chapter have recently been somewhat slackened by the spring term examinations but with the beginning of the new term plans for an intensive rushing campaign have been laid out, and all the members are looking forward with great eagerness to the annual hop given at the final initiation. This is one of the social events that the members of Alpha Xi put over in true high-hat form, which brings to mind the royal banquet we had at the beginning of the year.

Brother Dees of Louisiana has decided to show the boys around here what he can do in track, and is breaking the tape when the rest of the entrants are bumping over the last hurdle.

As this is the last copy of THE DELTASIG this semester, the members of Alpha Xi would like to take this opportunity to wish all the brothers a happy, prosperous vacation.

Recent elections show the following changes in officers:

AS ALPHA CHI Chapter proceeds in the last lap of the school year 1930-31, many of its members are preparing for the termination of their college work. With most sincere regret do we who will continue on next semester look upon the departure of those brothers, for with them will go much of the force that has driven the chapter on to greater accomplishments.

In anticipation of graduation of these members, a number of them holding chapter offices, the usual March election of officers was held with results as follows:

Head Master . . . H. R. Perry Jr.
Senior Warden H. C. Bleekschmidt
Treasurer . . . P. M. Moody
Scribe . . . W. F. Ellersiek
Chancellor . . . C. B. Wheeler

Those of the remaining official positions that will be left vacant after graduation will be filled after the spring initiation.

Of all the events listed on the Alpha Chi calendar for this quarter, the initiation ceremonies and banquet on May 9 are most significant. The chapter on that day contemplates admitting into active membership ten pledges.

In a retrospective glance over our fraternal work of the year, much can be found that speaks well for Alpha Chi's members. To be sure, one or two deficiencies may be noted, but these can and will be remedied by earnest effort in the present period and in the coming year.

THE LAST LAP!
In a few more weeks the college careers of fifteen Psi men will be over. Scholars and athletes are among those leaving which means that the rest of the men will have to keep on working to keep the chapter in the foreground on the campus.

Fourteen men of Psi and fair friends attended the brilliant Military Ball and danced to the music of Wayne King and his orchestra. The spring formal on May 16 will be the last social event of the season. The height of the social season was reached when Psi held its famous Bowery Party on March 14. Tuxedos are very nice, but it was well agreed that the Bowery outshone any formal party. Thirteen brave lads raided the Delta Zeta house and brought thirteen ladies to the party in a well covered moving van.

Psi is still among the leaders in athletic competition. William Henke established a new world's record in the quarter-mile dash of 48.9 seconds on February 28 at the Wisconsin-Iowa meet. Brother Henke has been working hard during his three years on the team and well deserves this honor. Edwin Lattimer, our "Union" man, has been appearing in the Haresfoot production, "It's a Gay Life."

We feel that this year has been a very successful one and that Psi is on top and intends to stay there.

· THE · DIRECTORY · OF · DELTA · SIGMA · PI

Founded at New York University, School of Commerce,
Accounts and Finance, on November 7, 1907, by Alexander
F. Makay, Alfred Moysello, Harold V. Jacobs
and H. Albert Tienken.

A fraternity organized to foster the study of business in universities; to encourage scholarship and the association of students for their mutual advancement by research and practice; to promote closer affiliation between the commercial world and students of commerce, and to further a high standard of commercial ethics and culture, and the civic and commercial welfare of the community.
